Baby HUEY

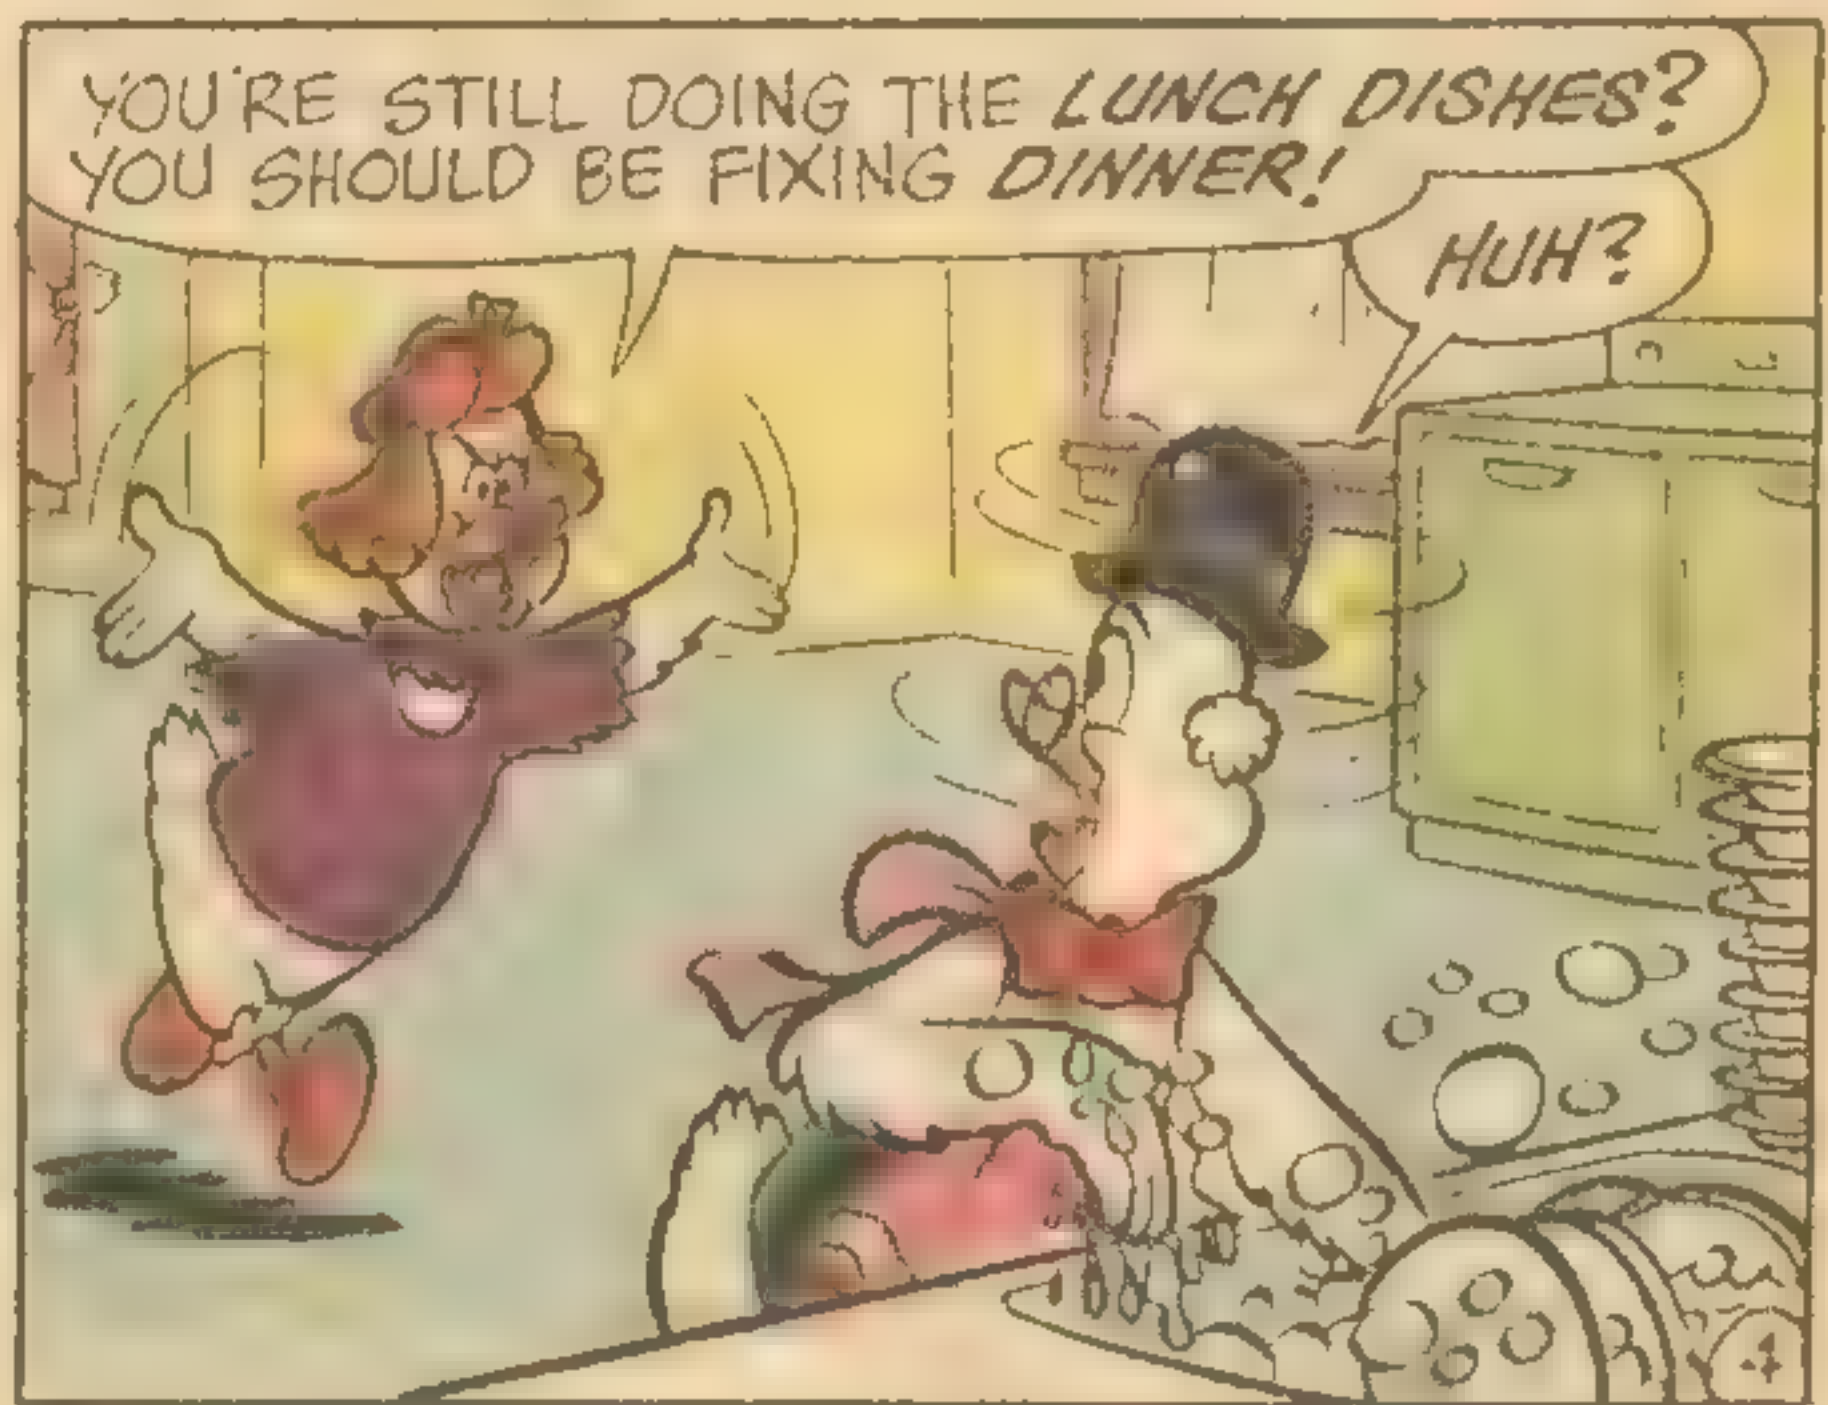

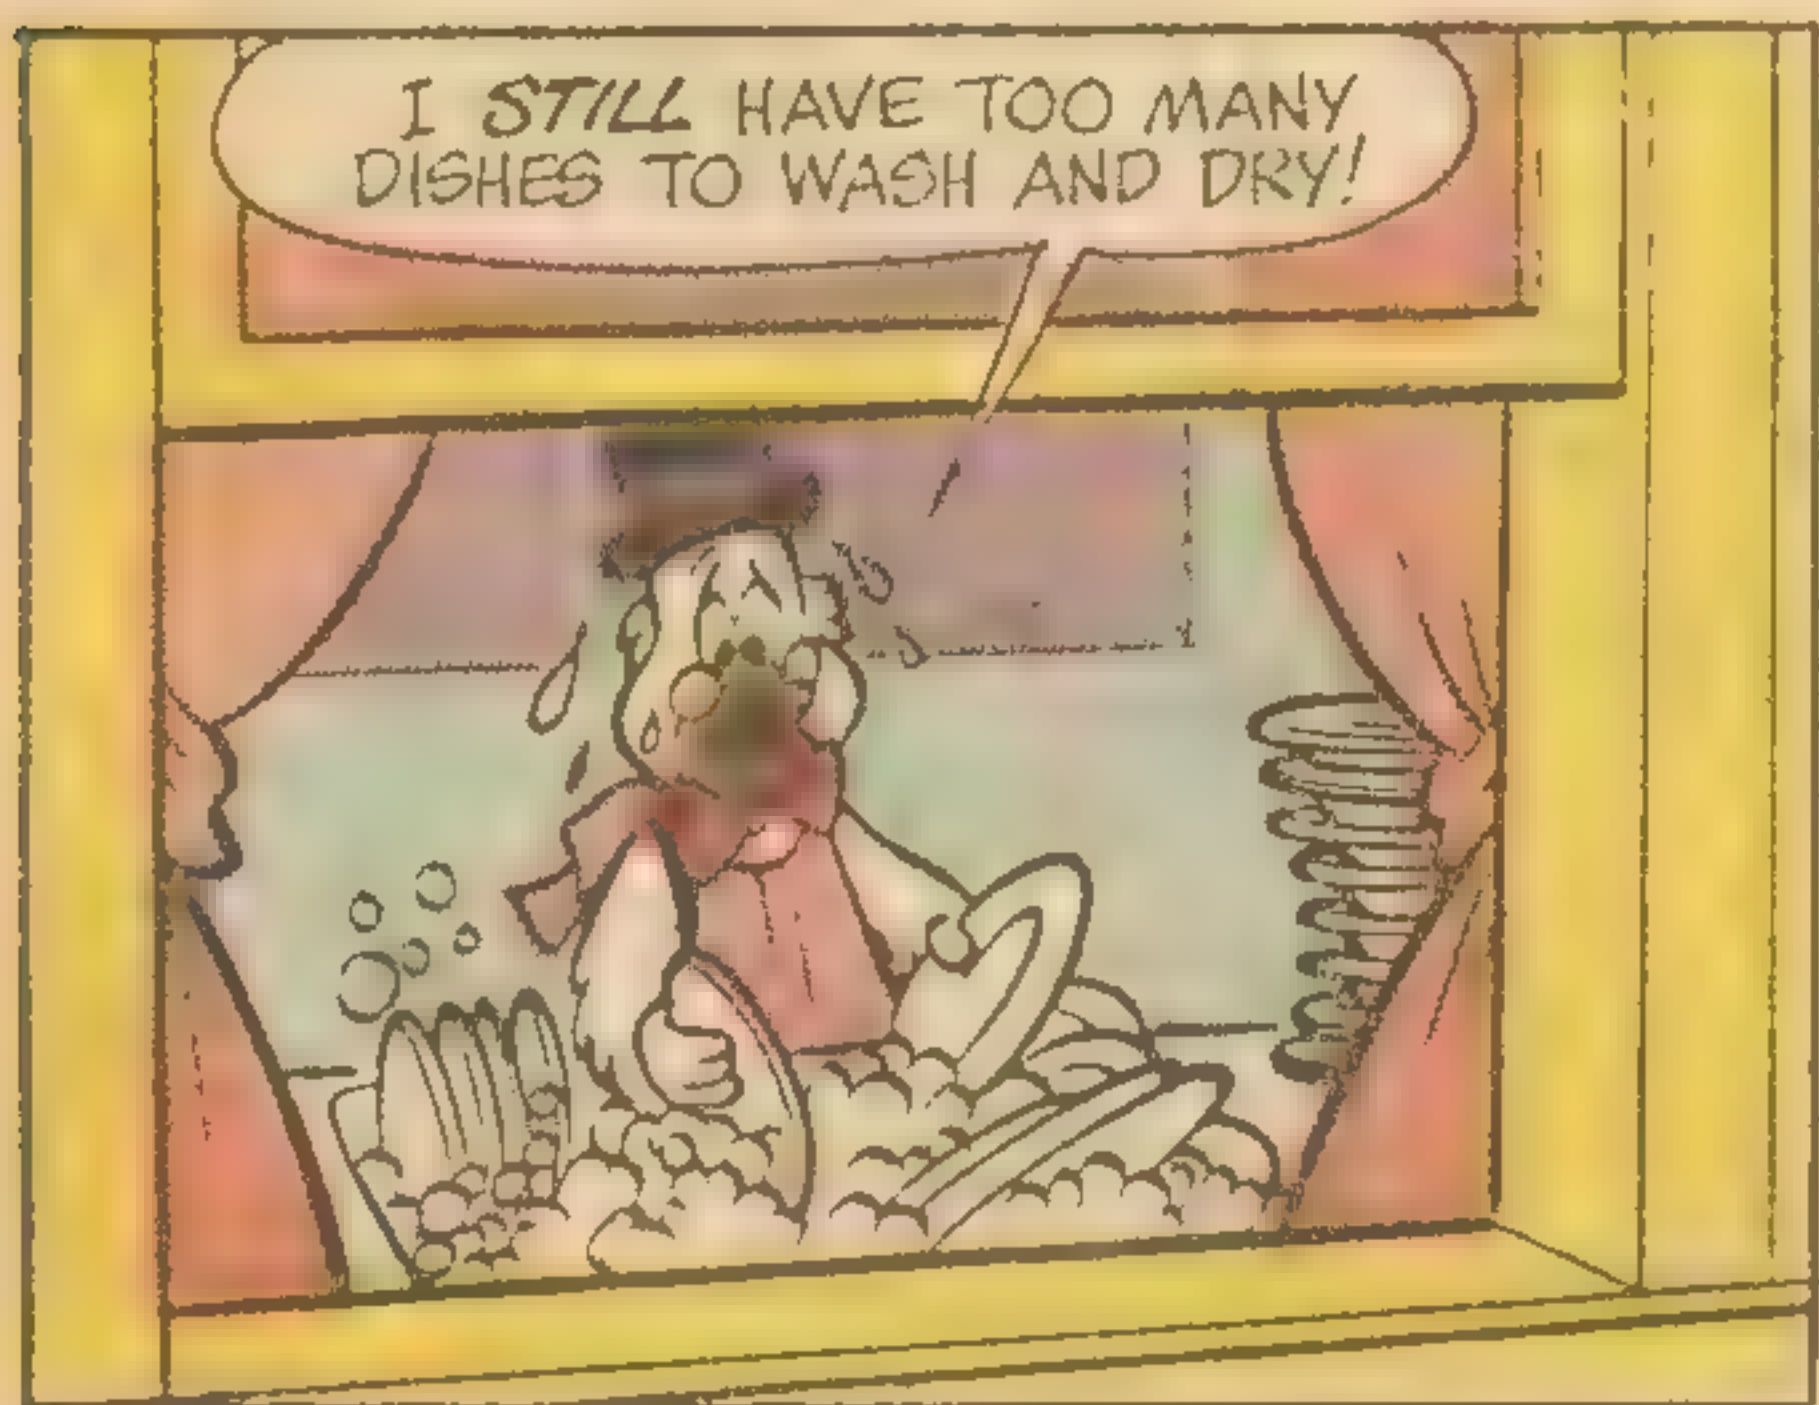

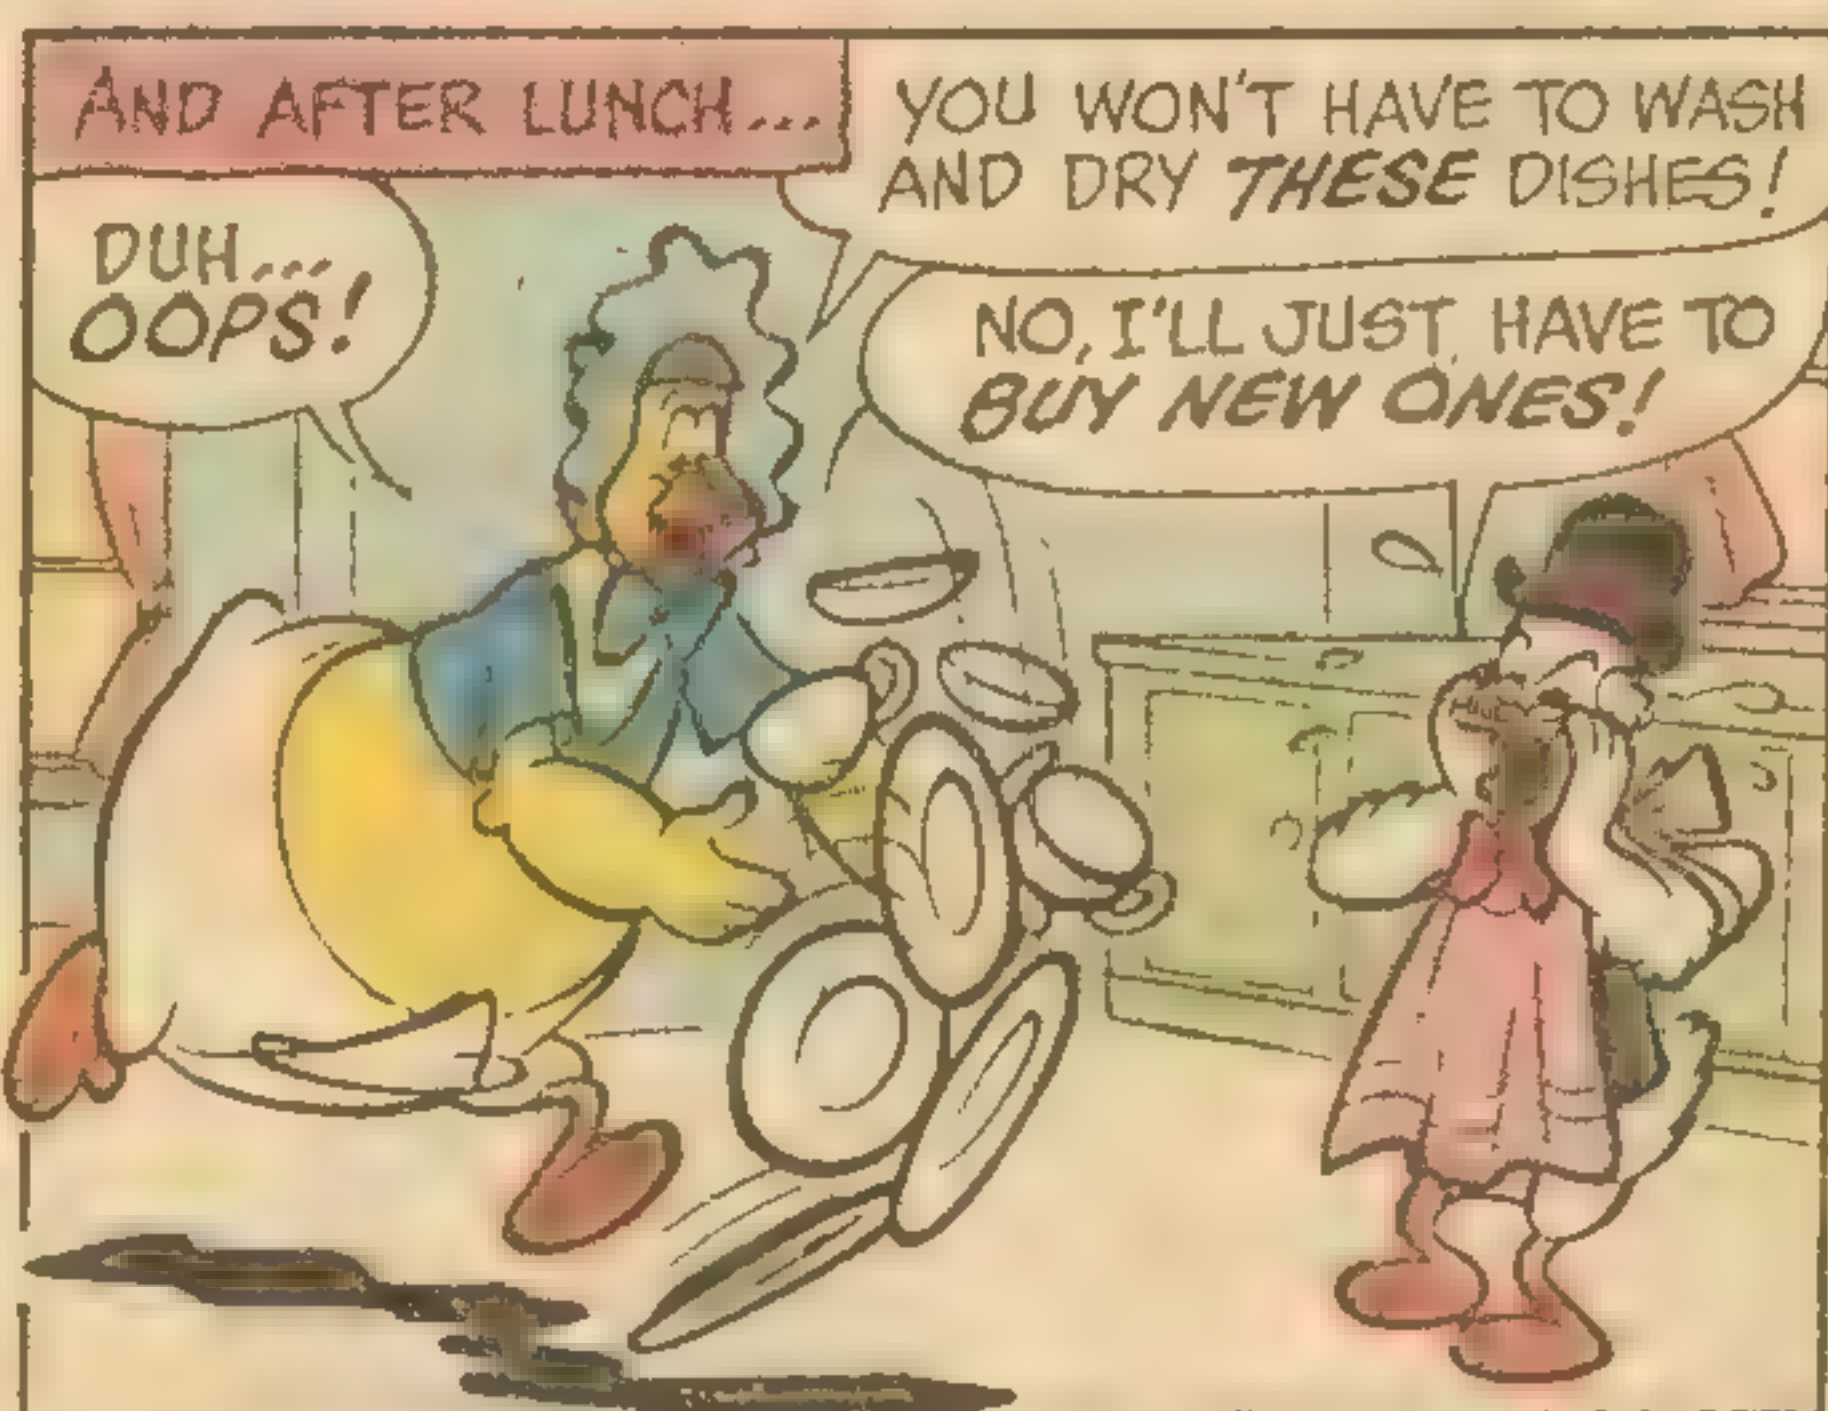

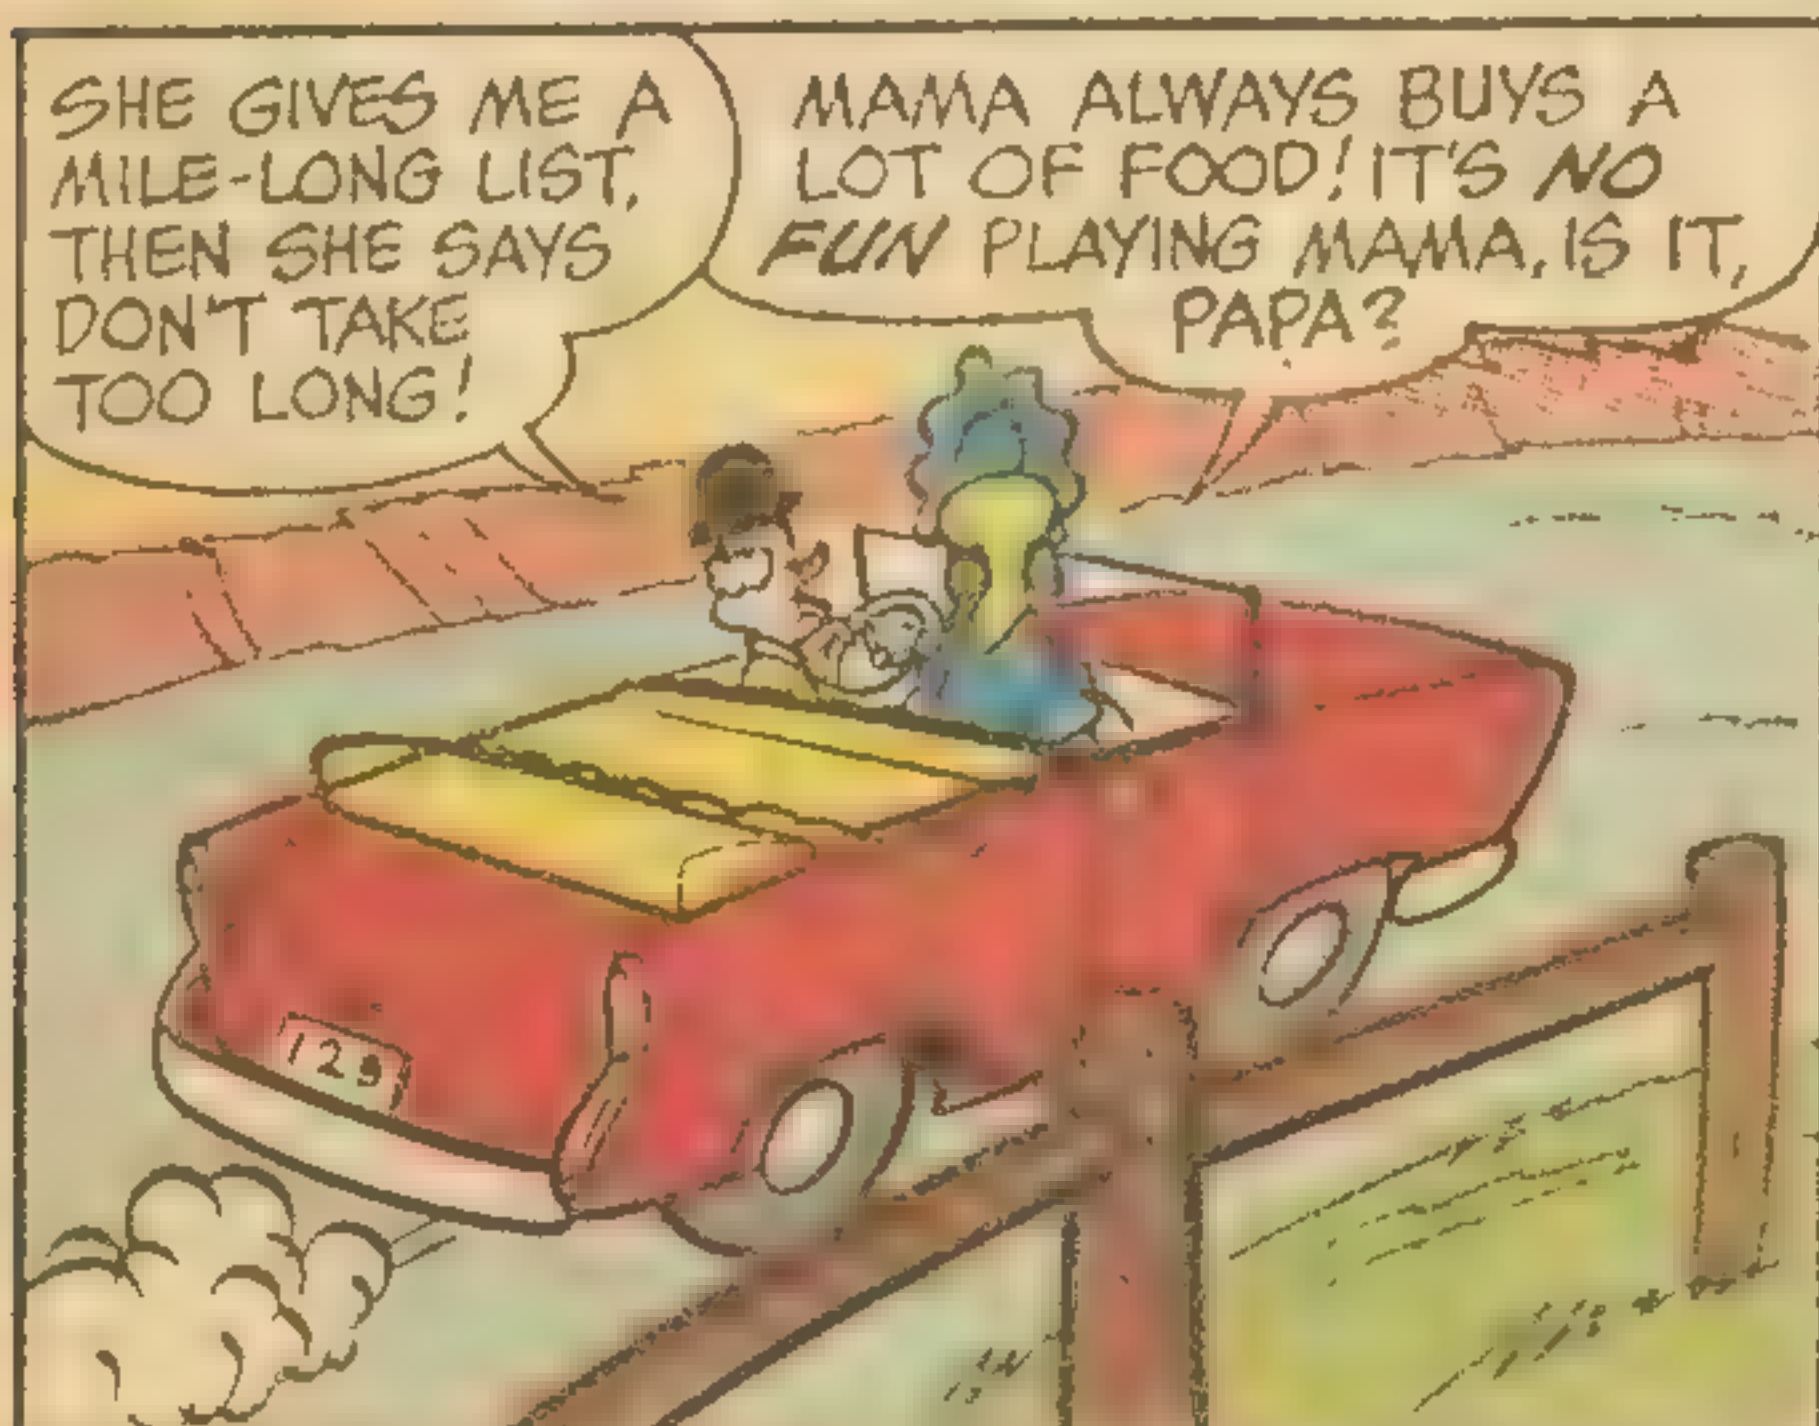

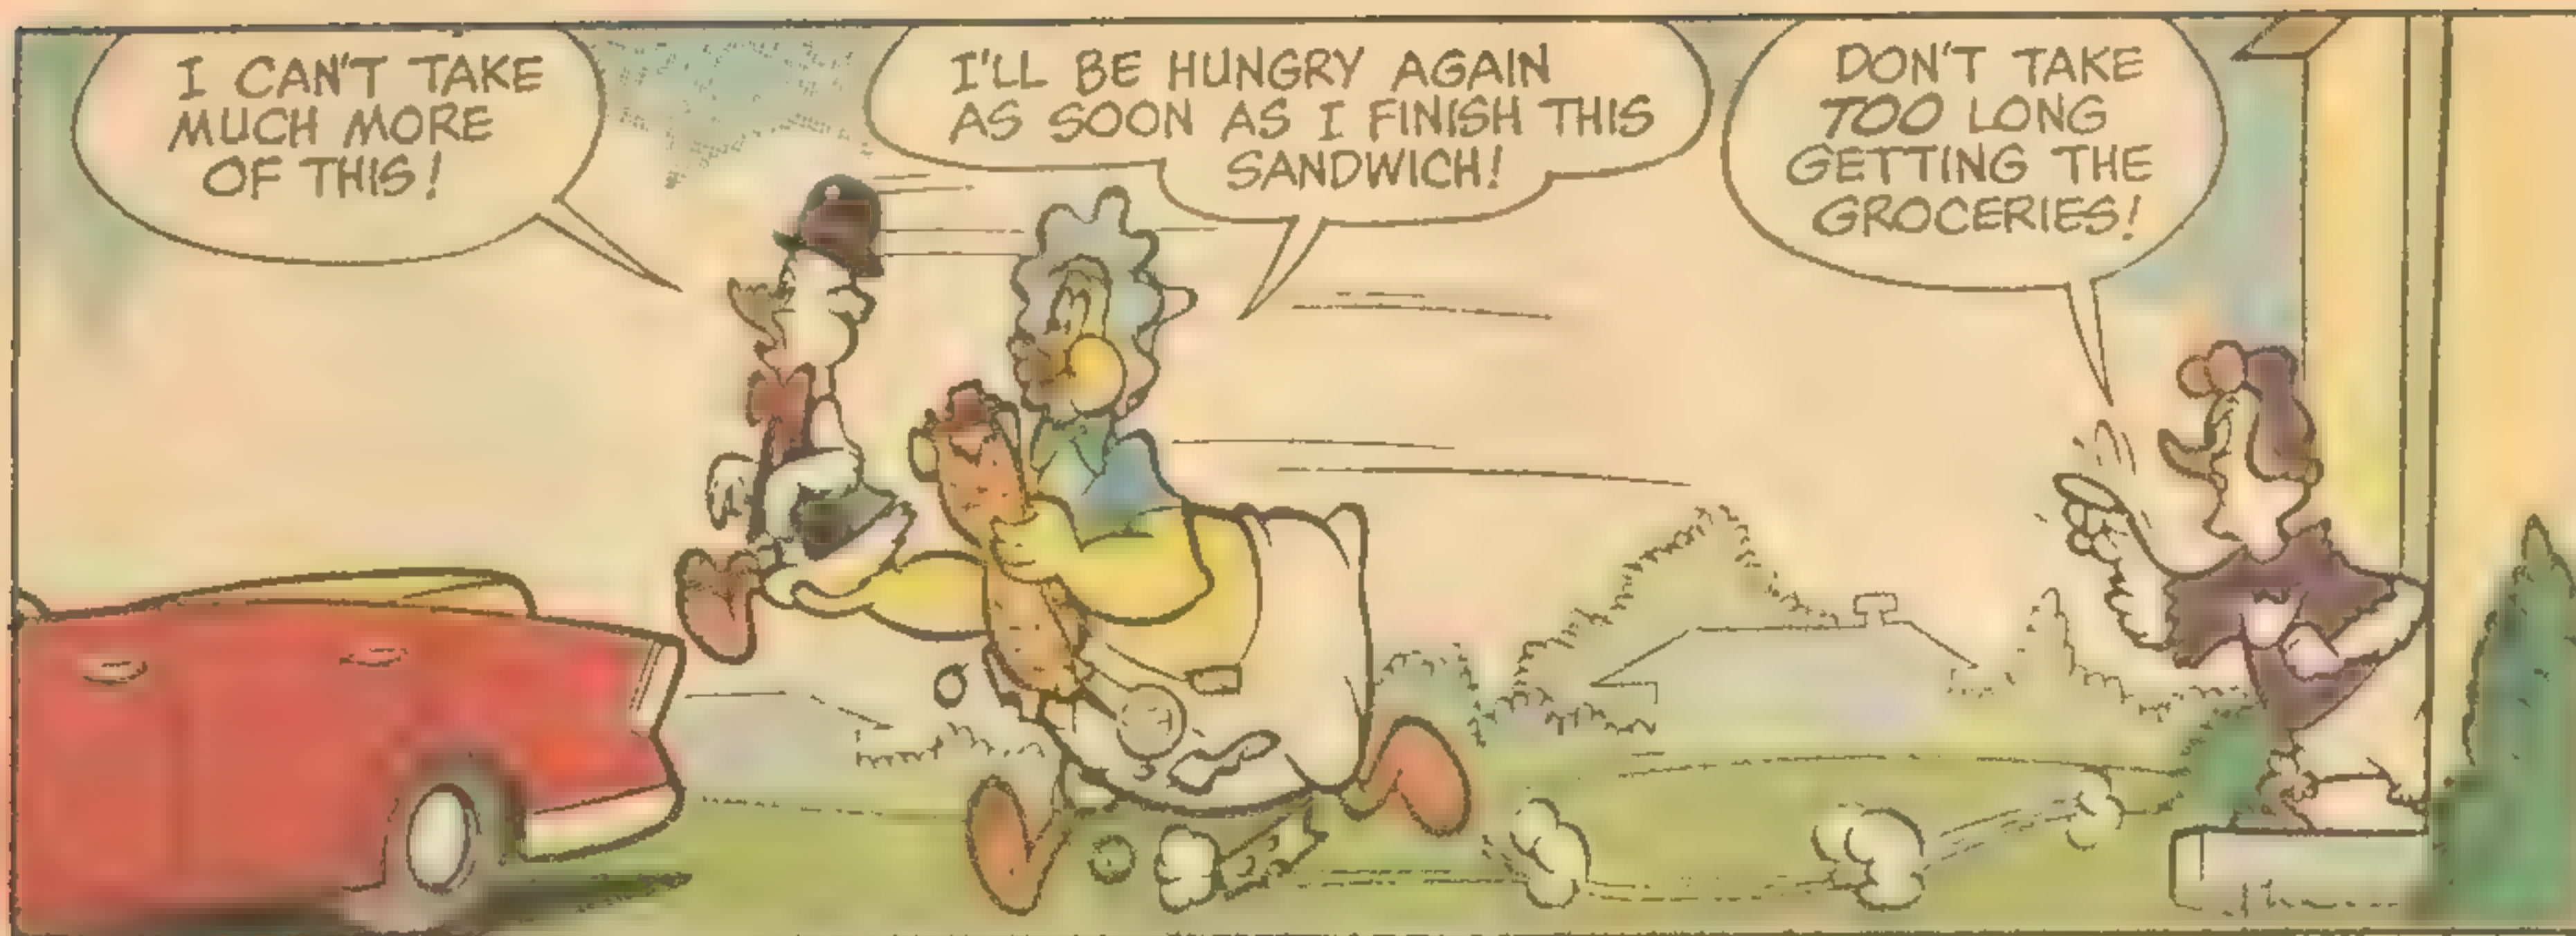

the Baby CIANT

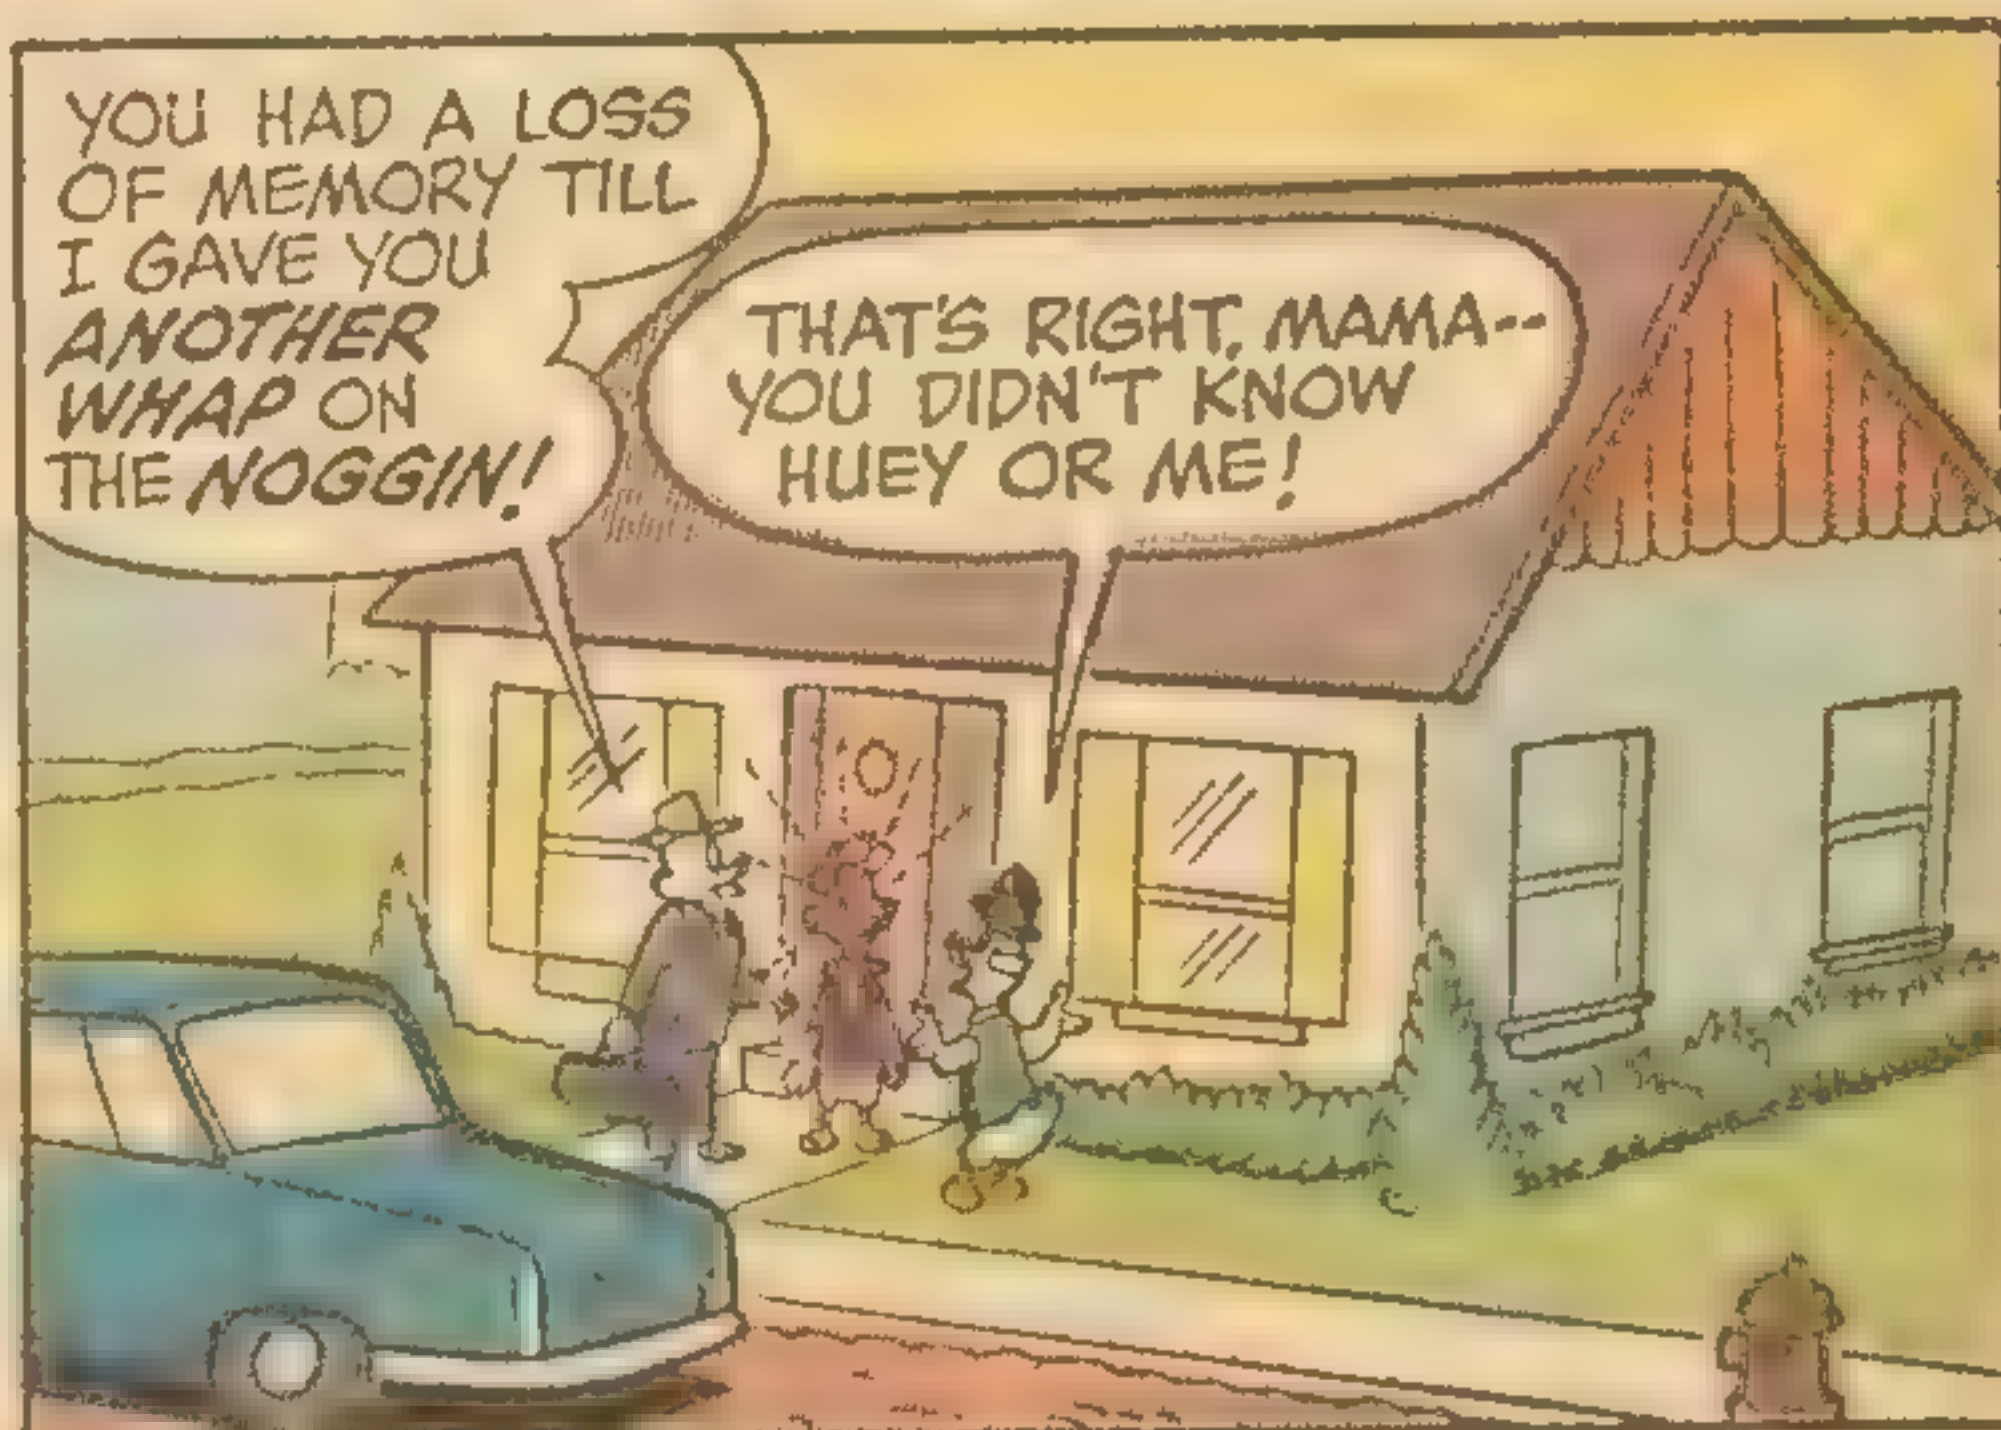

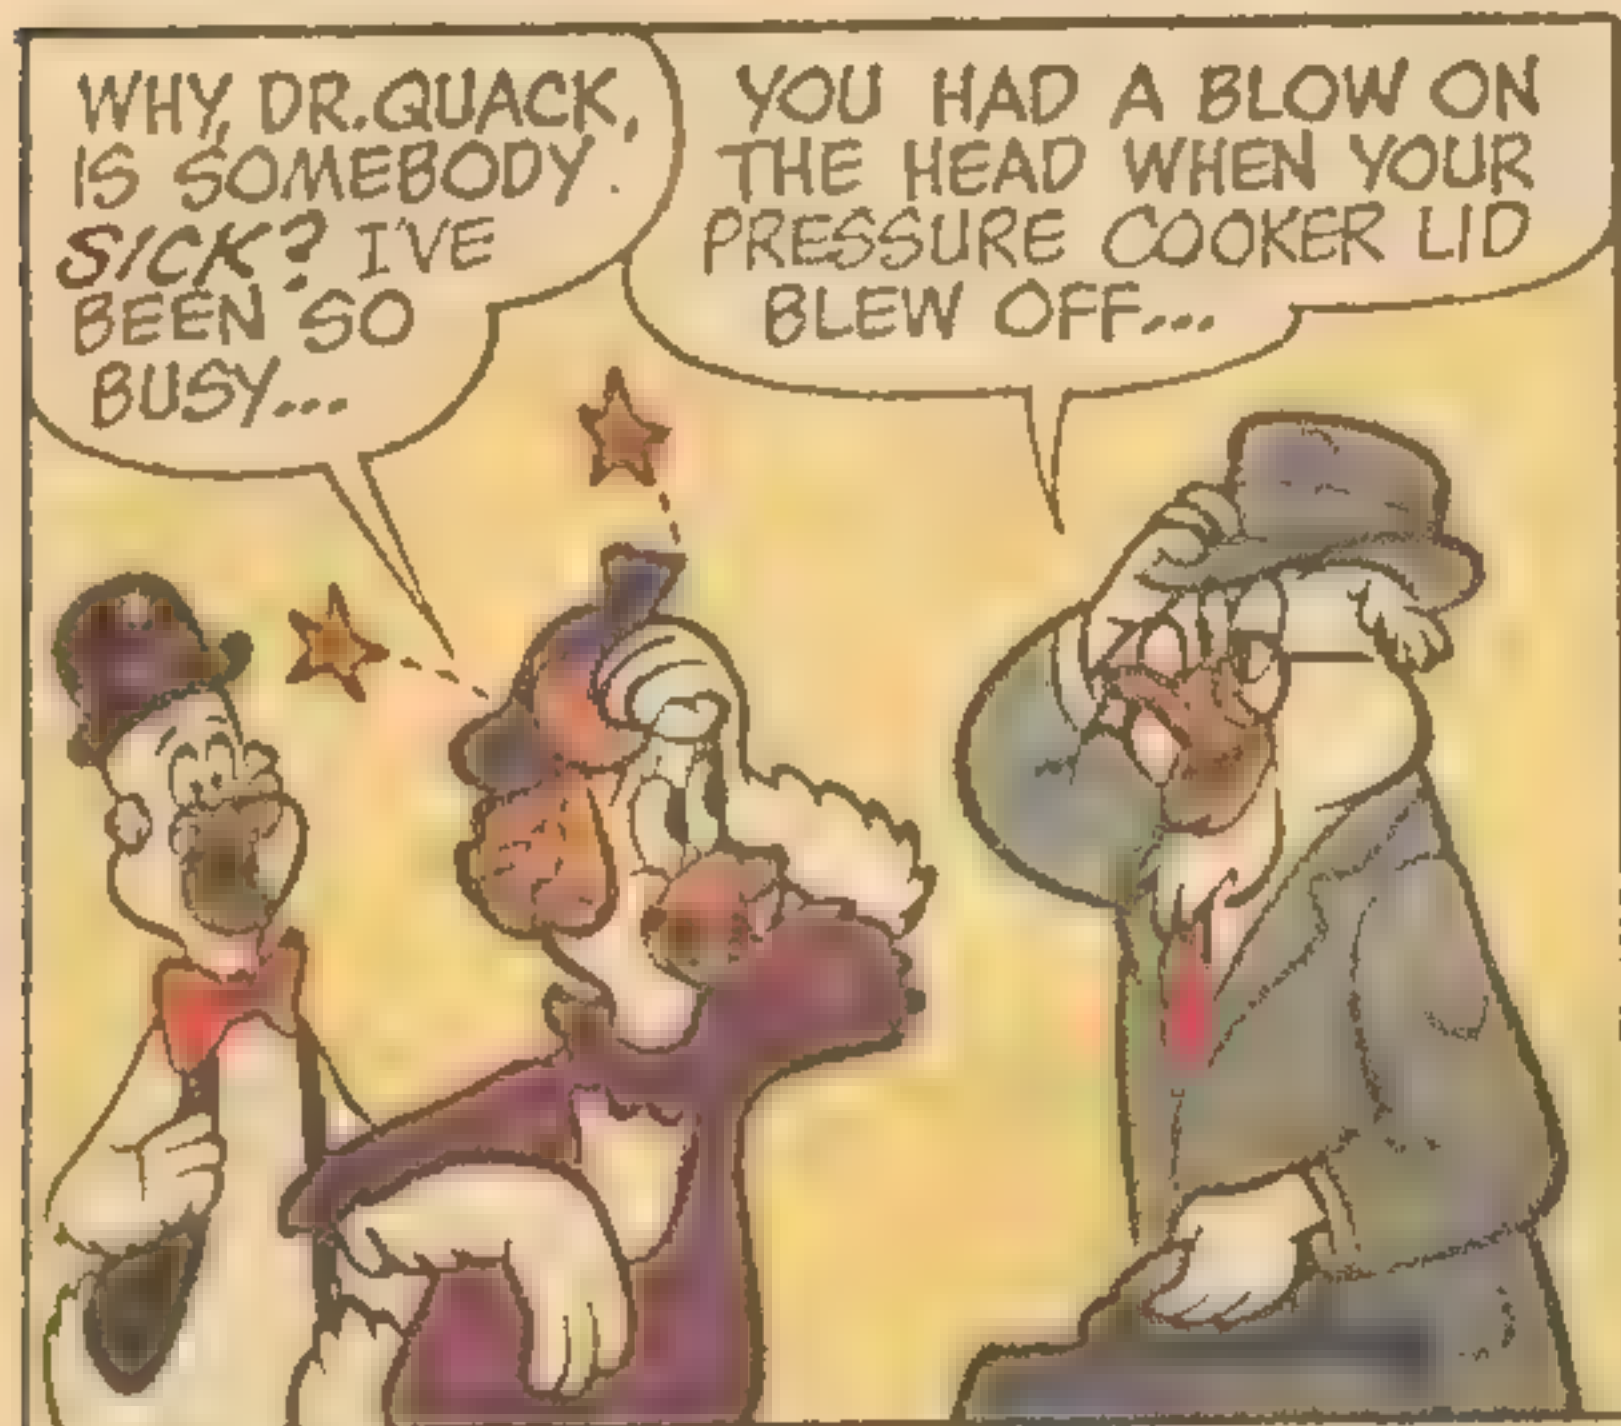

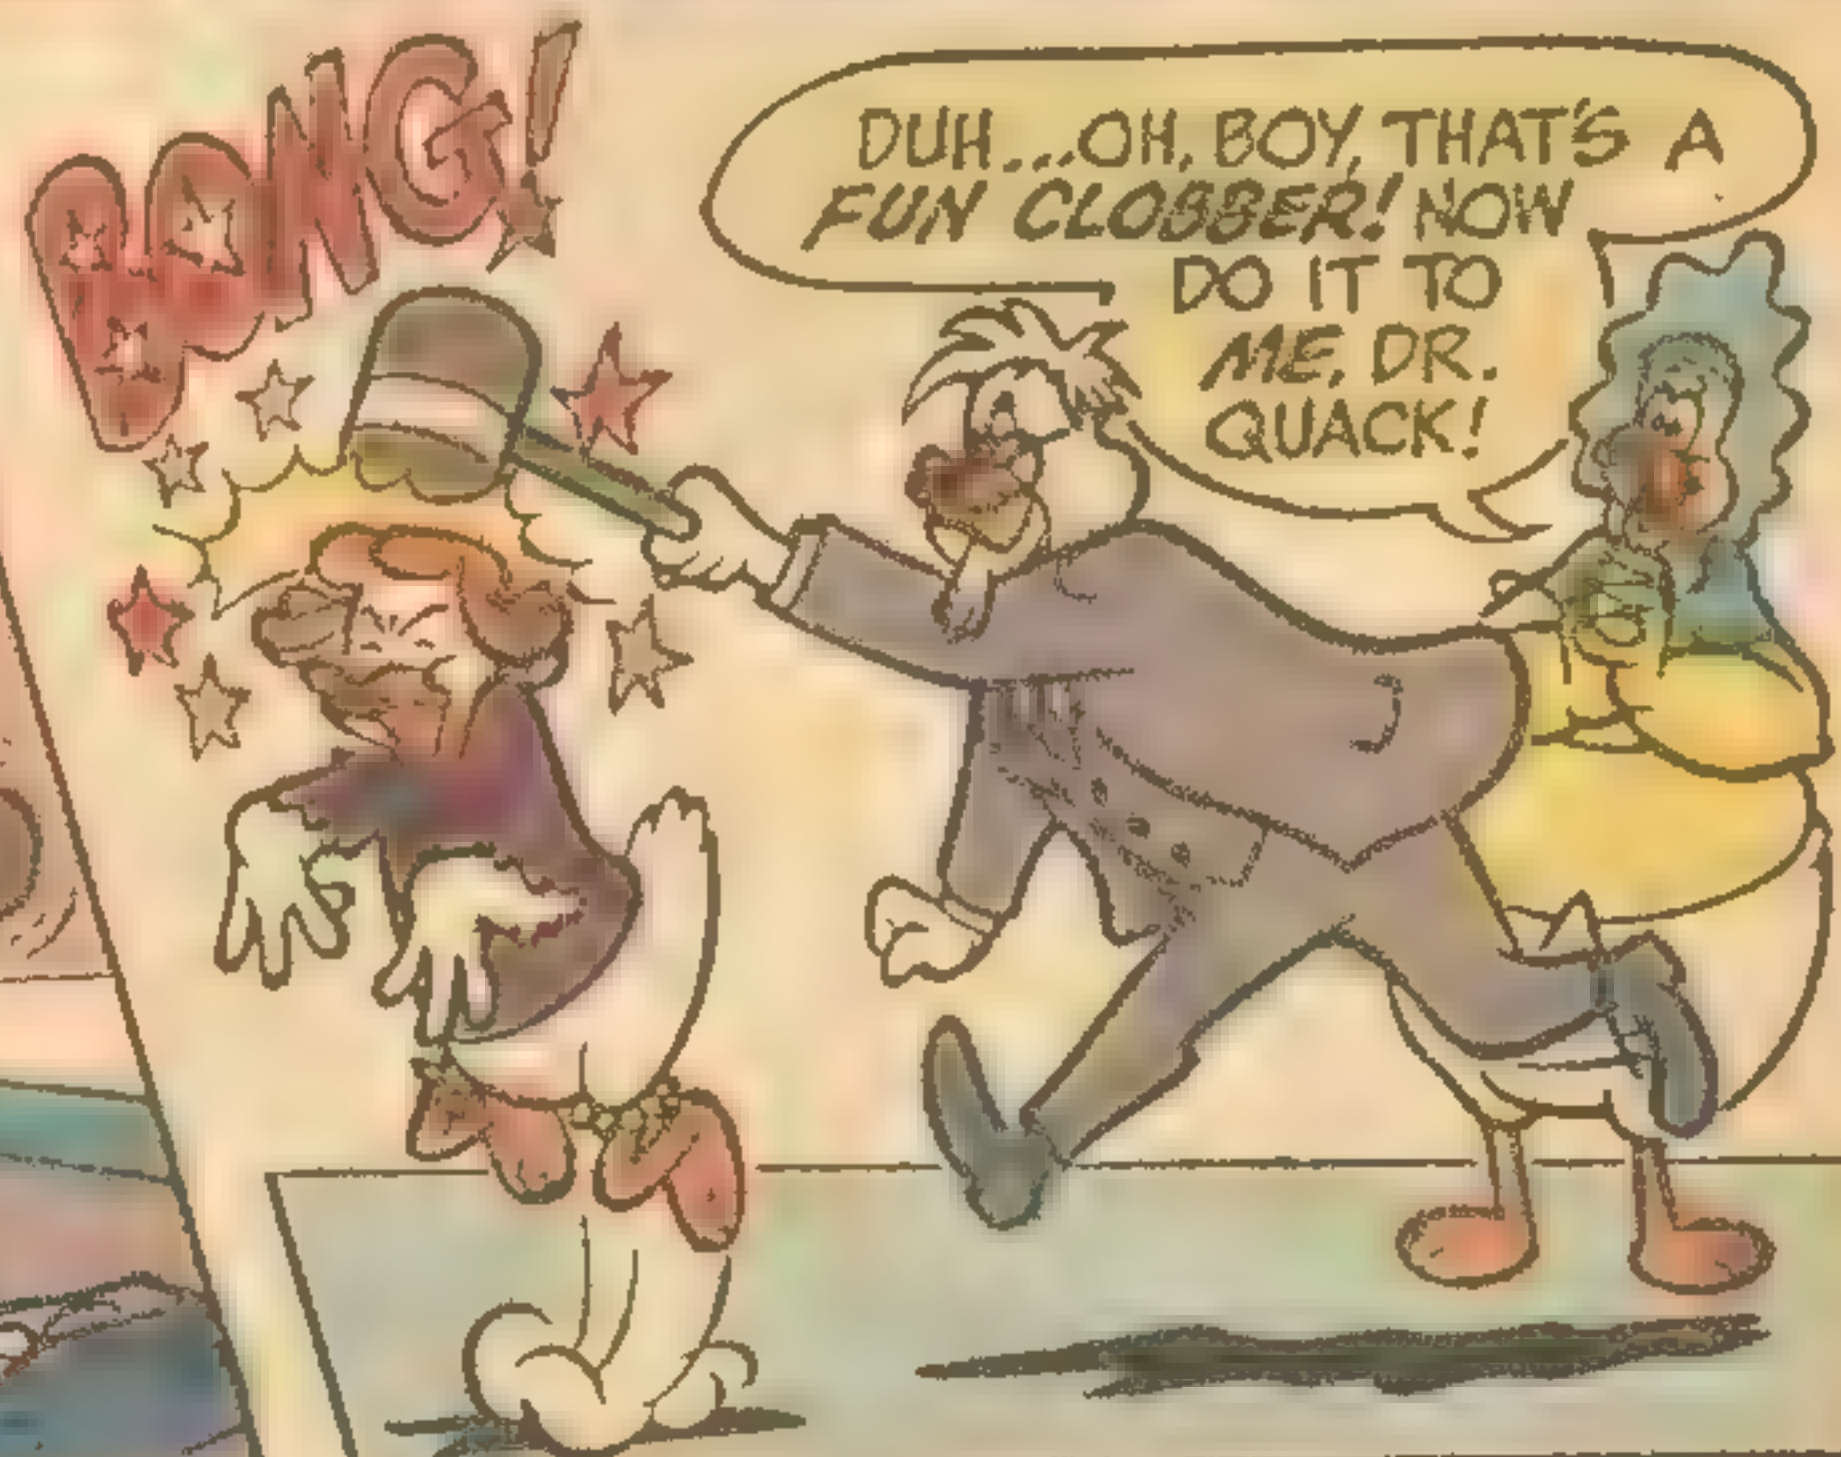

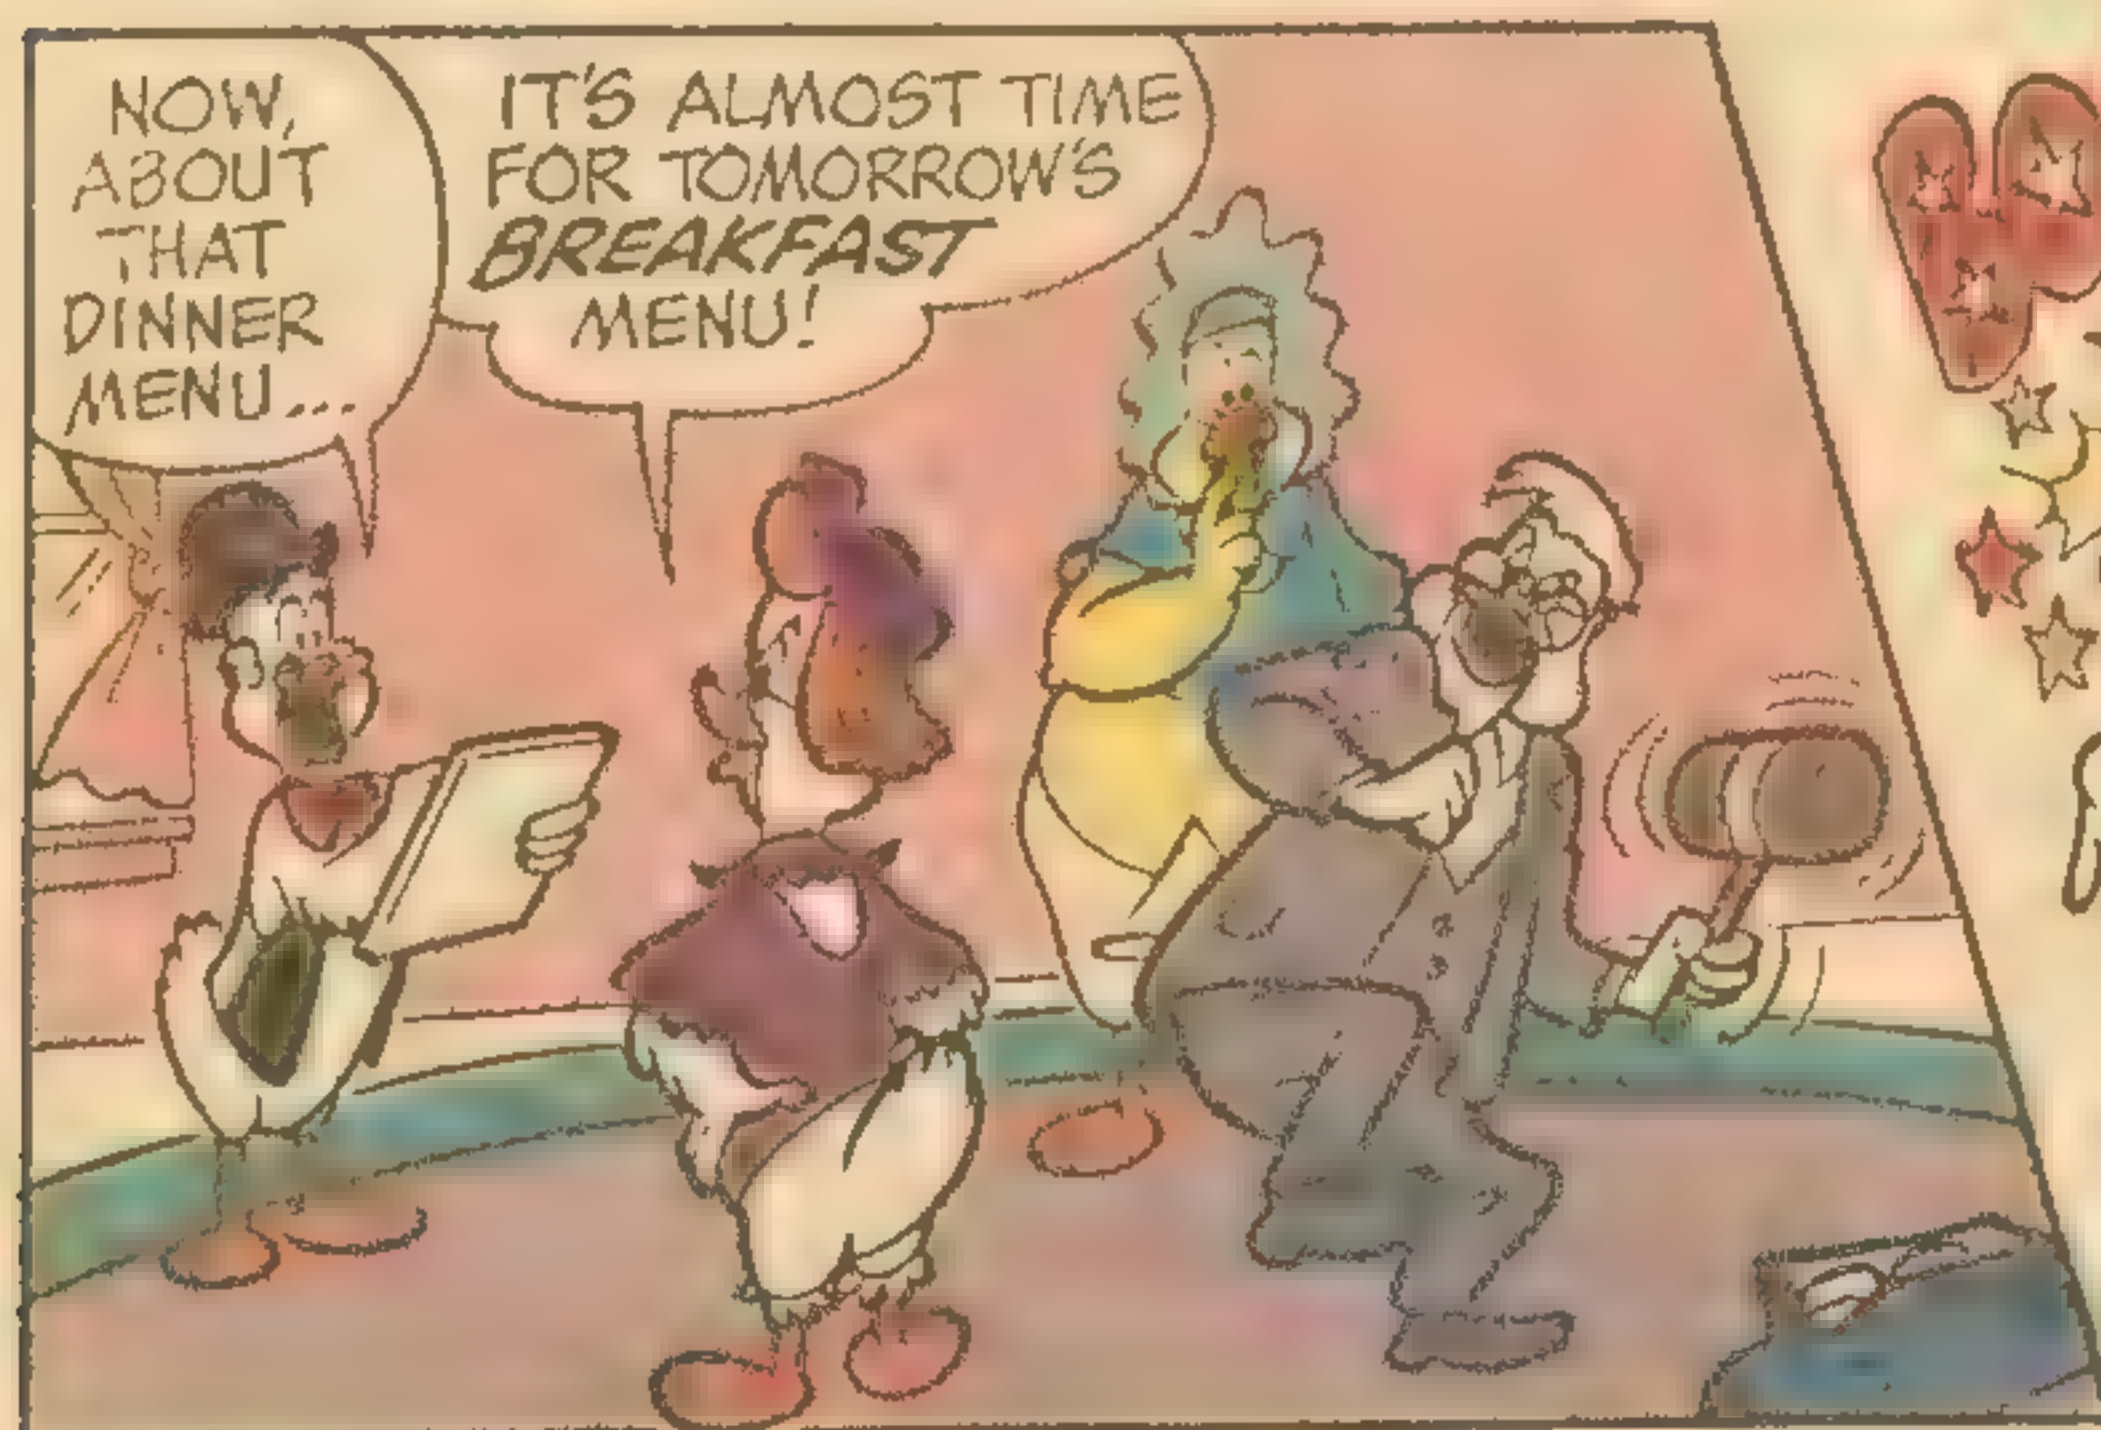

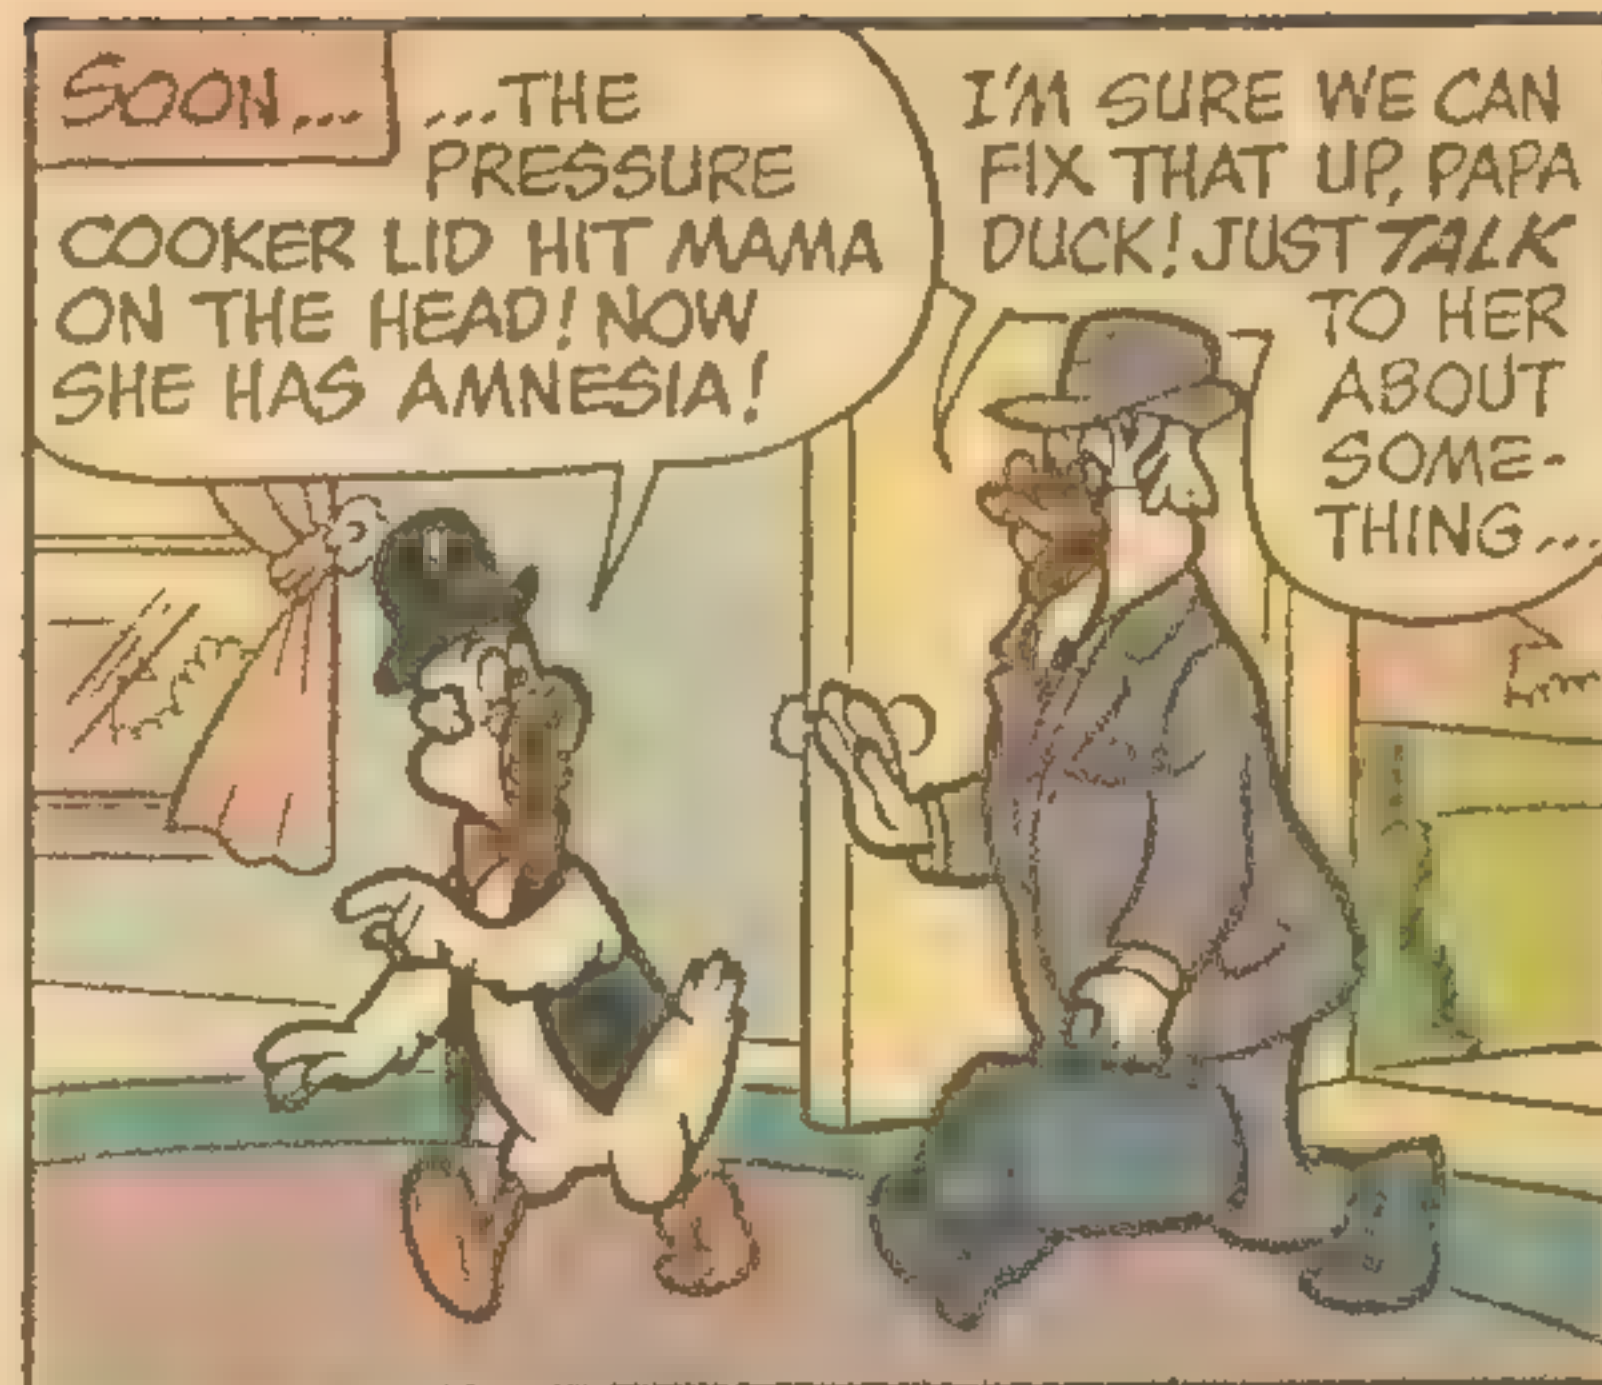

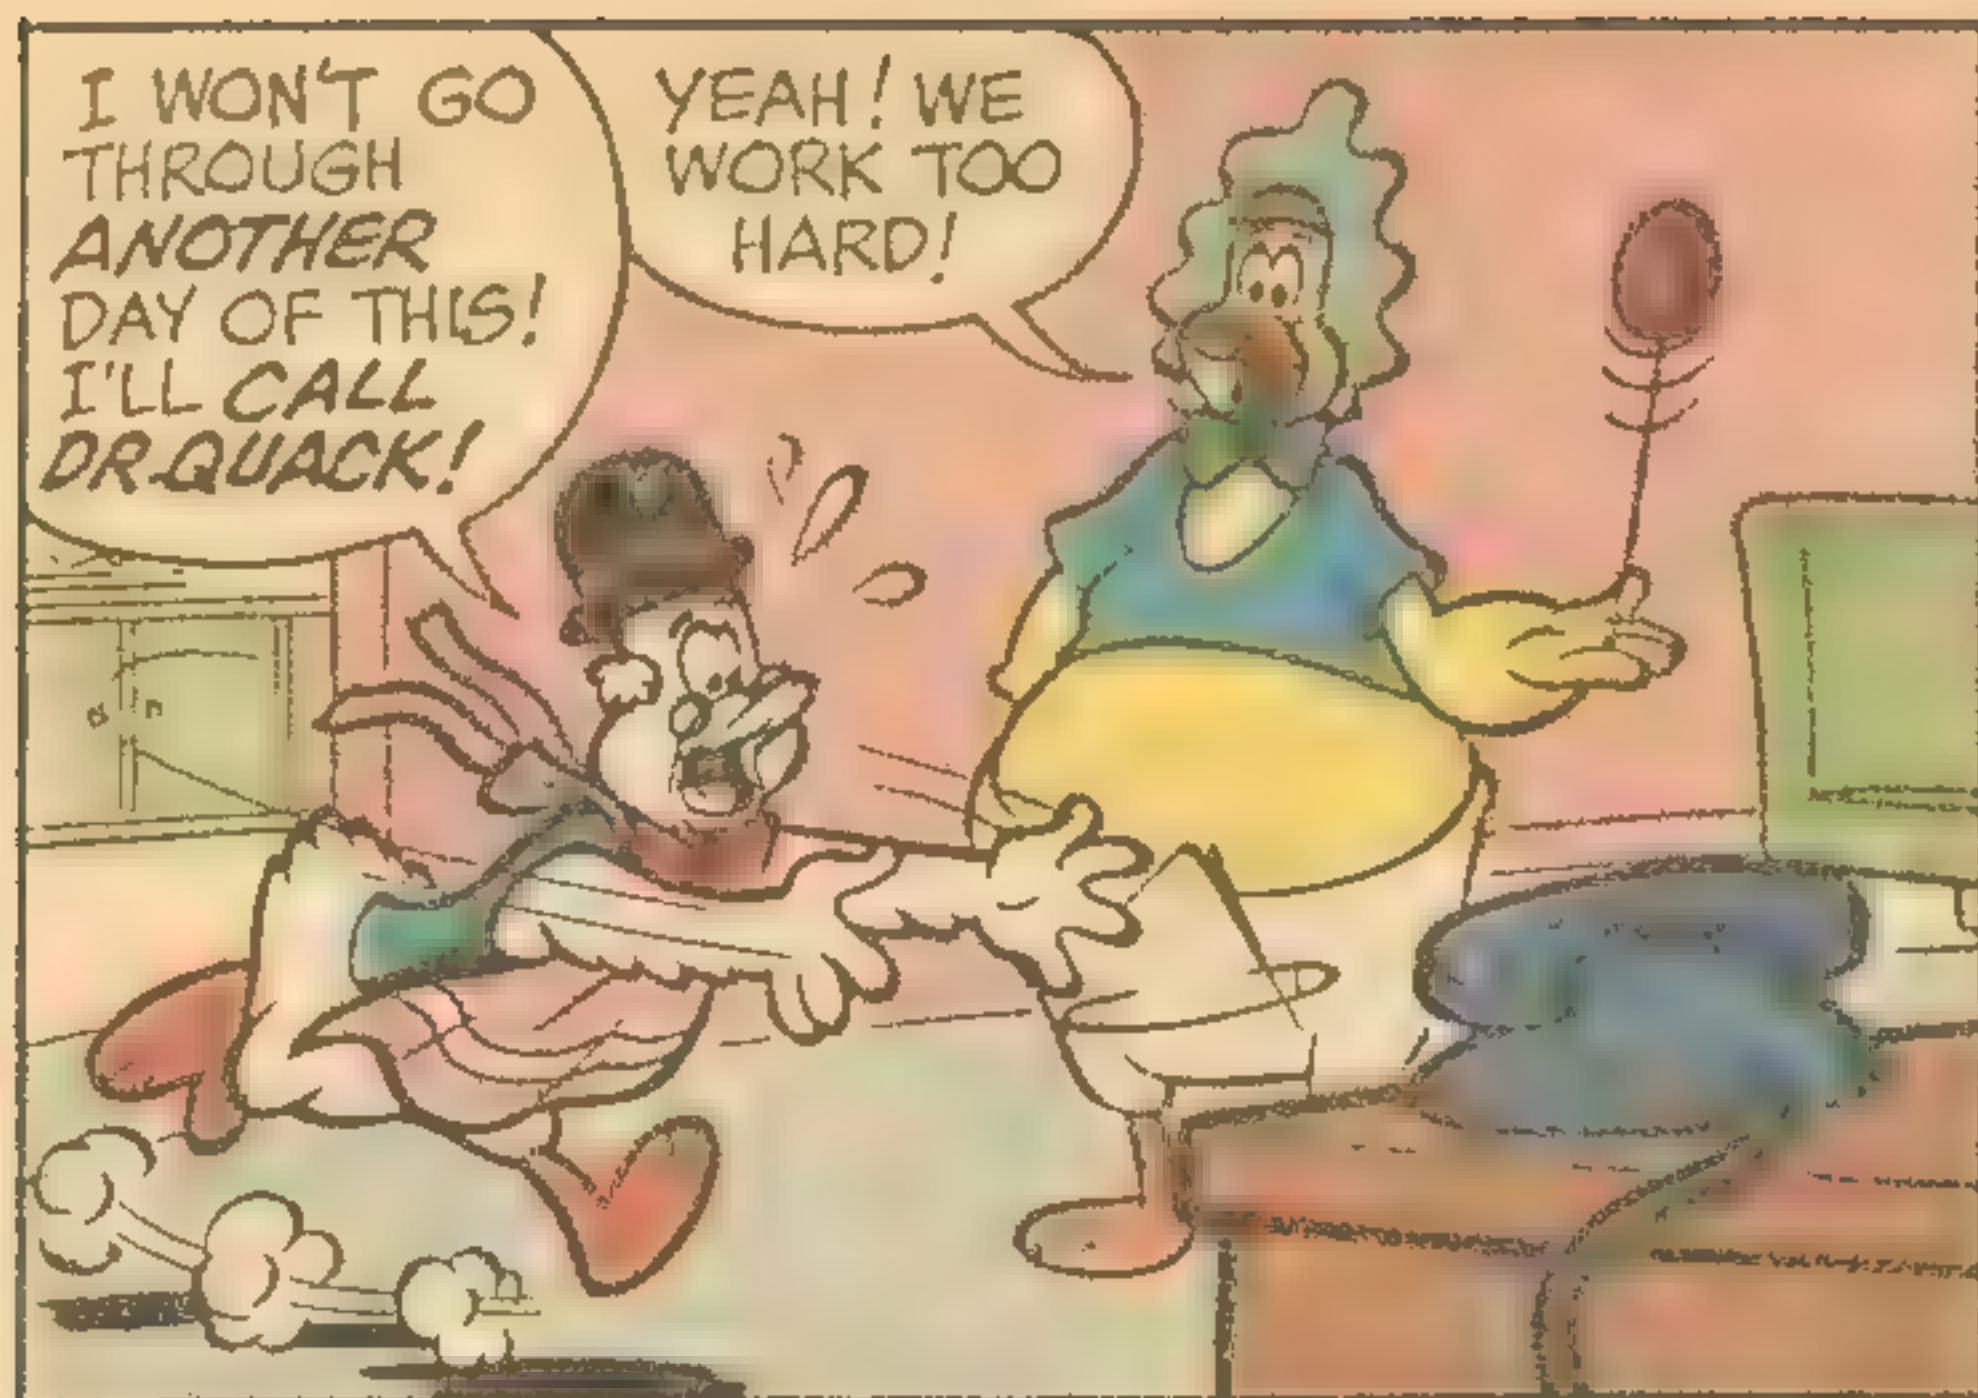

IN MAMA'S DAY OFF

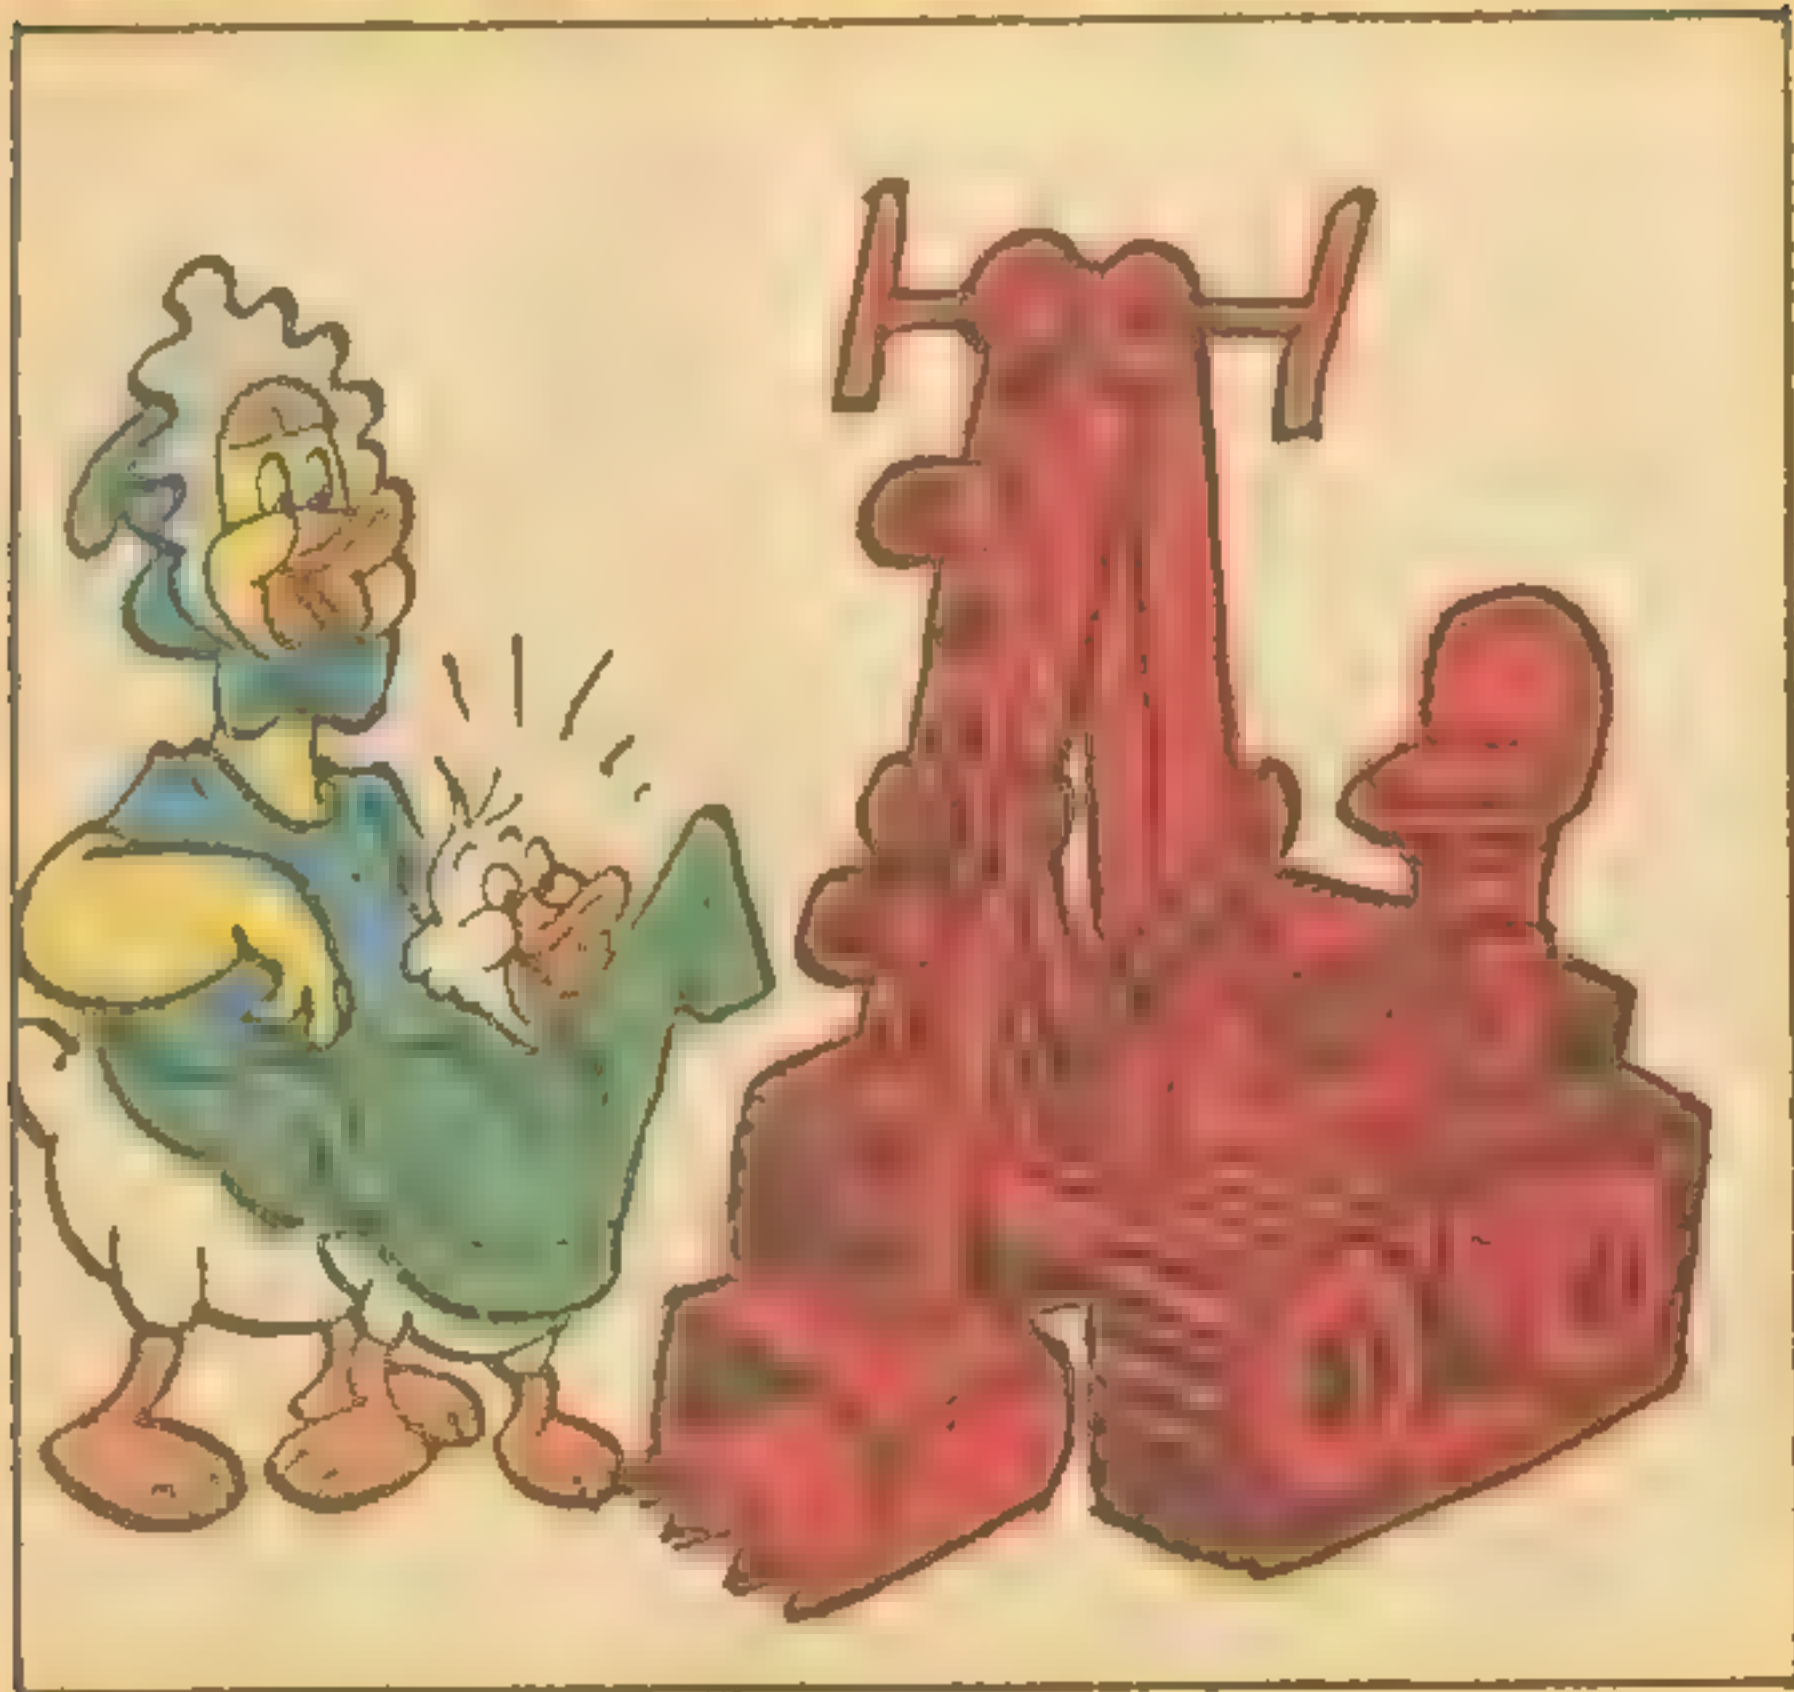

BABY HUEY in THE BIG DEAL

"It's the greatest invention . . . dah . . . I ever invented!" Dimwit declared. He was talking to Huey, but Papa Duck was nearby, and he looked at the looney contraption and shook his head.

"What is it, Dimwit?" he asked. "Let me guess. It's a bottle opener that makes cookies and does the laundry!"

"It is?" exclaimed Dimwit with amazement. "Gawsh, and all I wanted it to do was mow lawns and weed gardens and pick up all the stuff and junk!"

"Duh . . . oh, Boy!" Huey shouted, jumping up and down with excitement. "Let's go mow the lawn and weed the stuff . . . !"

Papa got up from the sofa in a hurry and cried, "Oh, no you don't. I want my lawn just the way it is, and I'm crazy about the weeds in my garden!"

This hurt Dimwit's feelings, so he said to Huey, "Cousin Huey, I'm going into the lawn cutting and garden weeding business, and you can be my partner. You and I will get rich and a certain duck whose name I won't mention because he's standing right here is going to be sorry he isn't a partner, too!"

"Will I be rich enough to buy nine chocolate ice cream cones?" asked Huey.

Dimwit replied as they started from the house, "You'll be able to buy one hundred chocolate ice cream cones!"

"Chee," said Huey with a pout, "I don't like chocolate ice cream cones. I like strawberry!"

Their first customer was the very rich Mrs. Vanderduck, who had a 150-room mansion in the swank Quacker Ridge section of Duckville. She said, "Your machine sounds simply marvelous. You hear? Marvelous! I'll pay you two dollars an acre. I have 15 acres. . . ."

And Dimwit asked, "Is it okay if I just do one acre? I don't know how to multiply 2 times 15!"

"You don't?" said Mrs. Vanderduck, who couldn't multiply very well either. "I believe 2 times 15 is 20!"

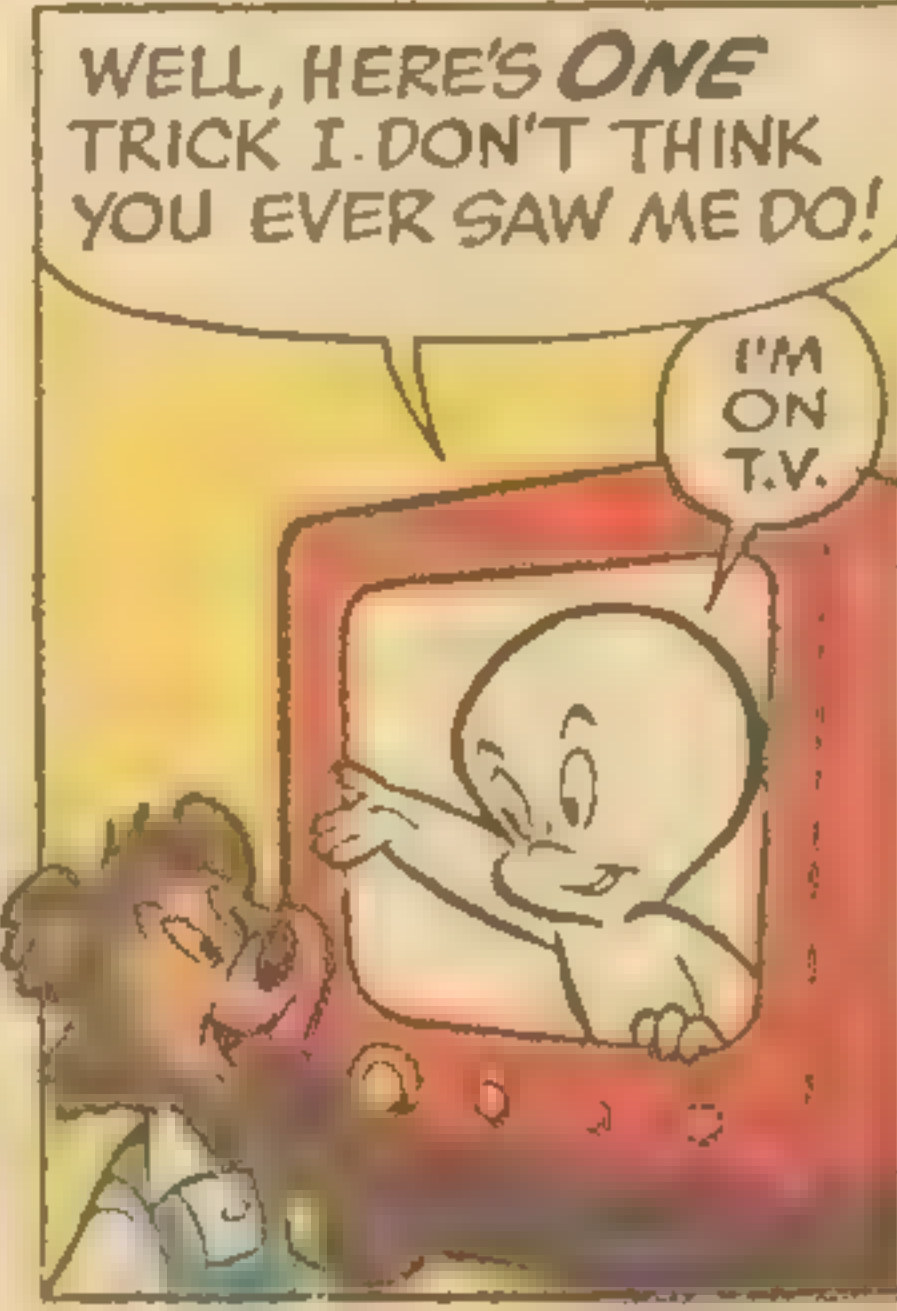

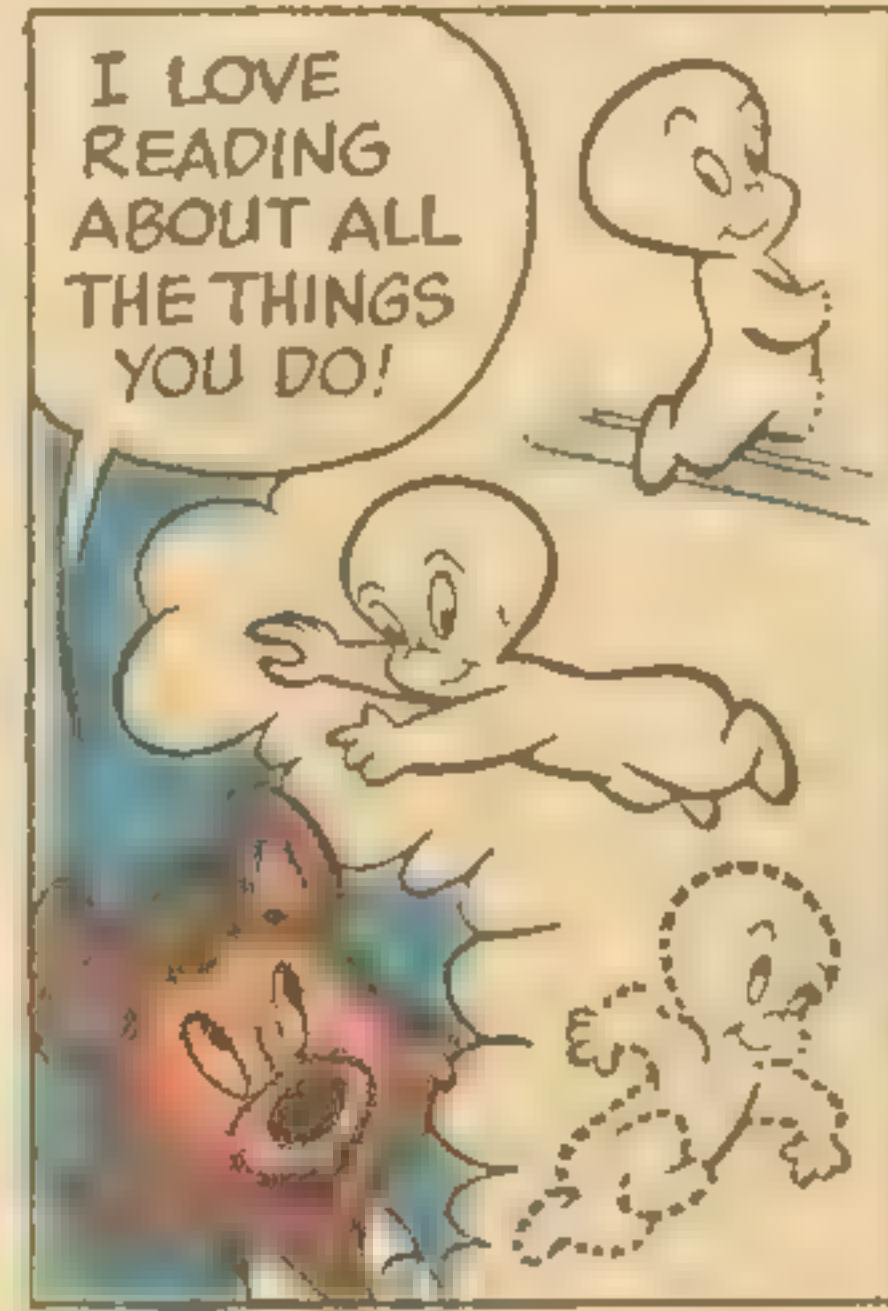

"Duh . . . oh, no it isn't!" Huey corrected. "It's thirty!"

"I do believe you're right!" admitted the lady after counting for five minutes on her fingers.

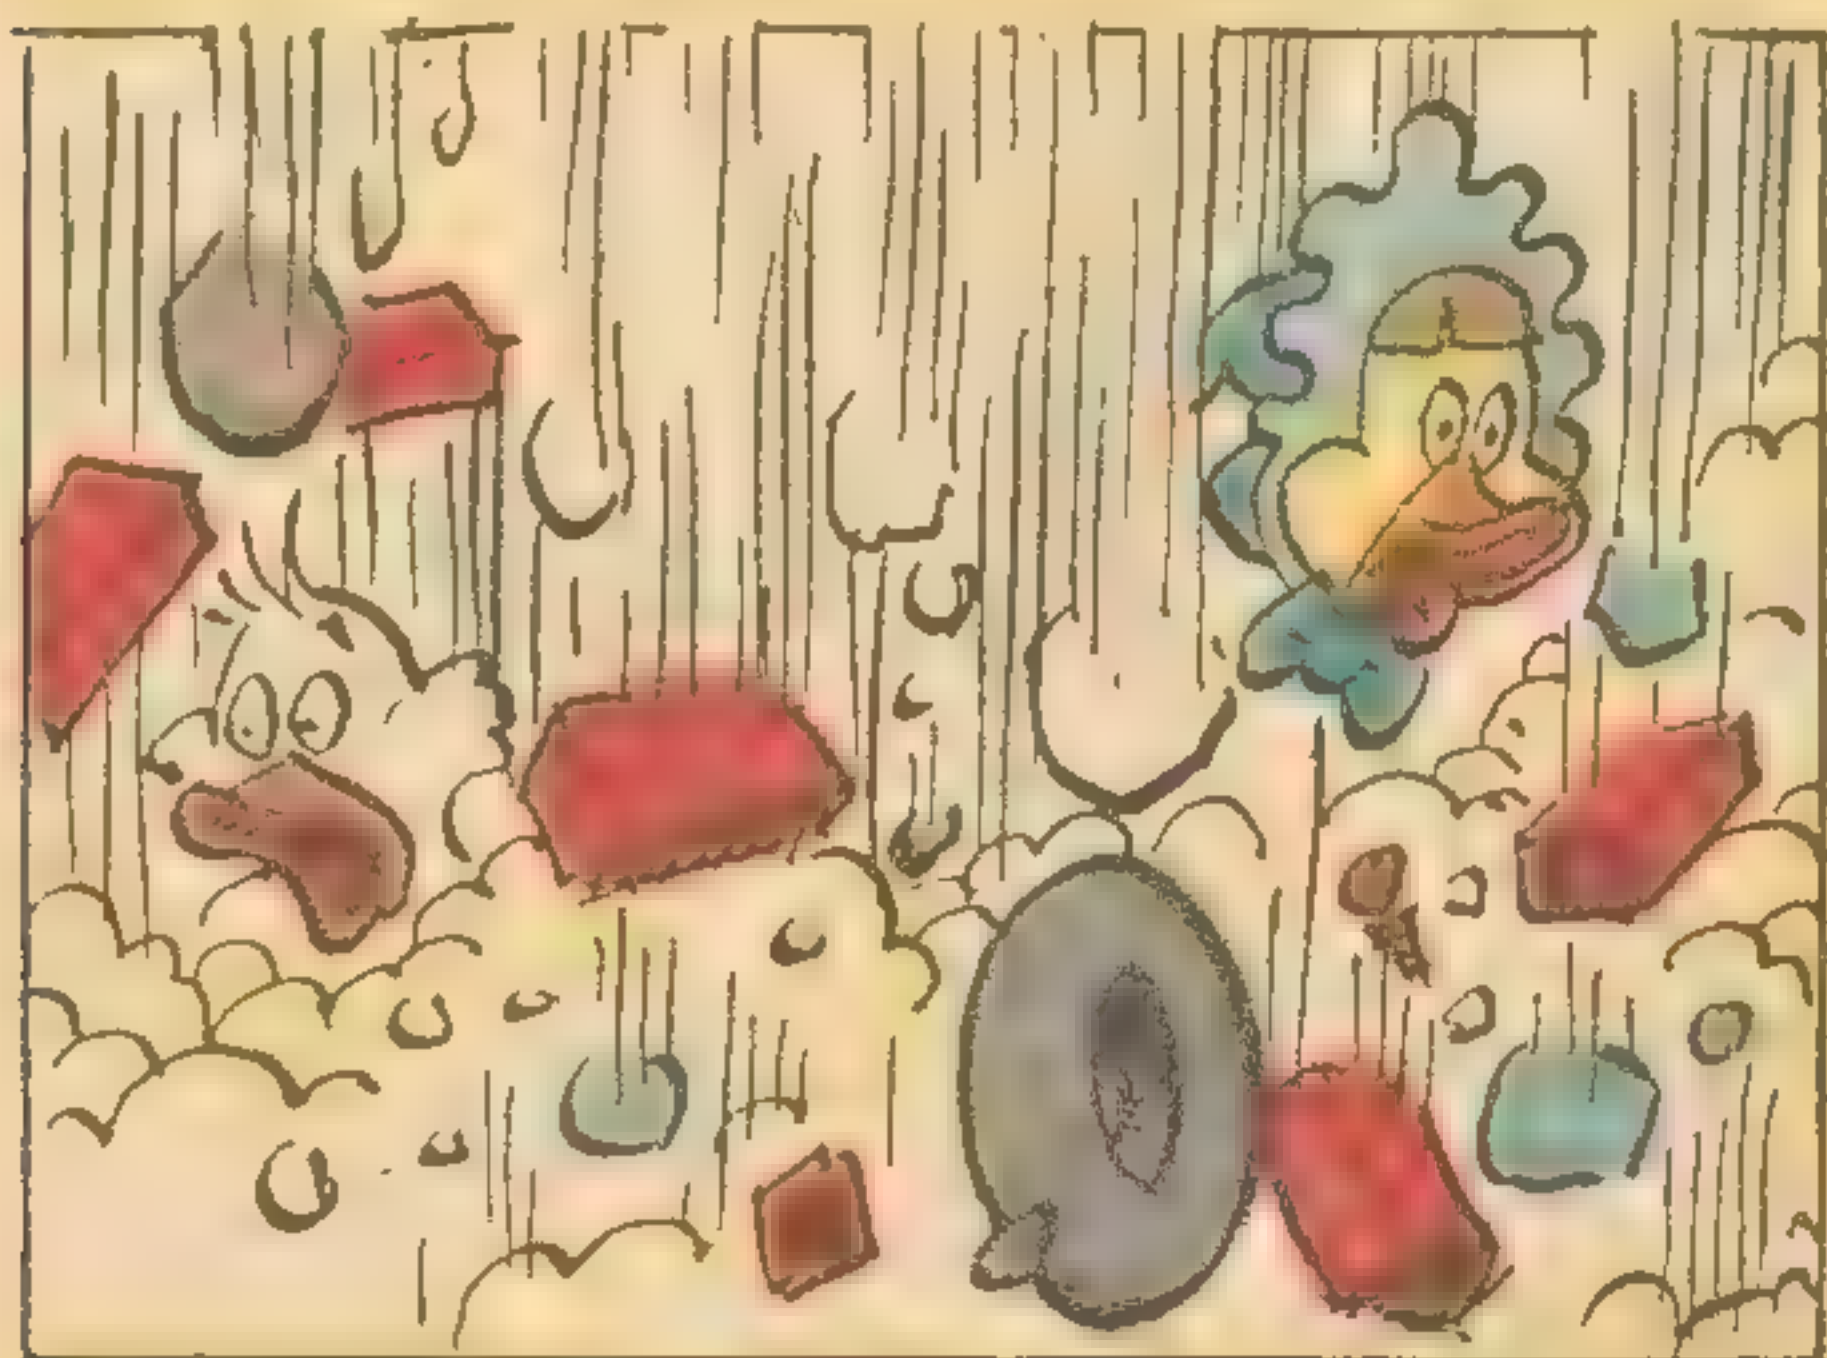

"How could you know 2 times 15 is 30?" demanded Dimwit as he and Huey got ready to mow the huge lawn. "You haven't ever been to school. You can't even count to six!"

"I sure can guess good!" Huey answered.

CASPER, THE FRIENDLY GHOST

Dimwit pulled a cord that was attached to an outboard motor that operated an old dishwasher which was on top of a secondhand thresher that was once used to cut wheat. How Dimwit put all this together was his secret.

"I sure hope this thing works!" he sighed, and with that the outboard motor putted, the dishwasher rumbled, and the thresher swooshed. "Hey, wait for me!"

That old thresher's tractor treads started clanking along at 20 miles-per-hour, and nothing could stop it. Huey jumped onto the top of the dishwasher, grabbing Dimwit's hand as he leaped.

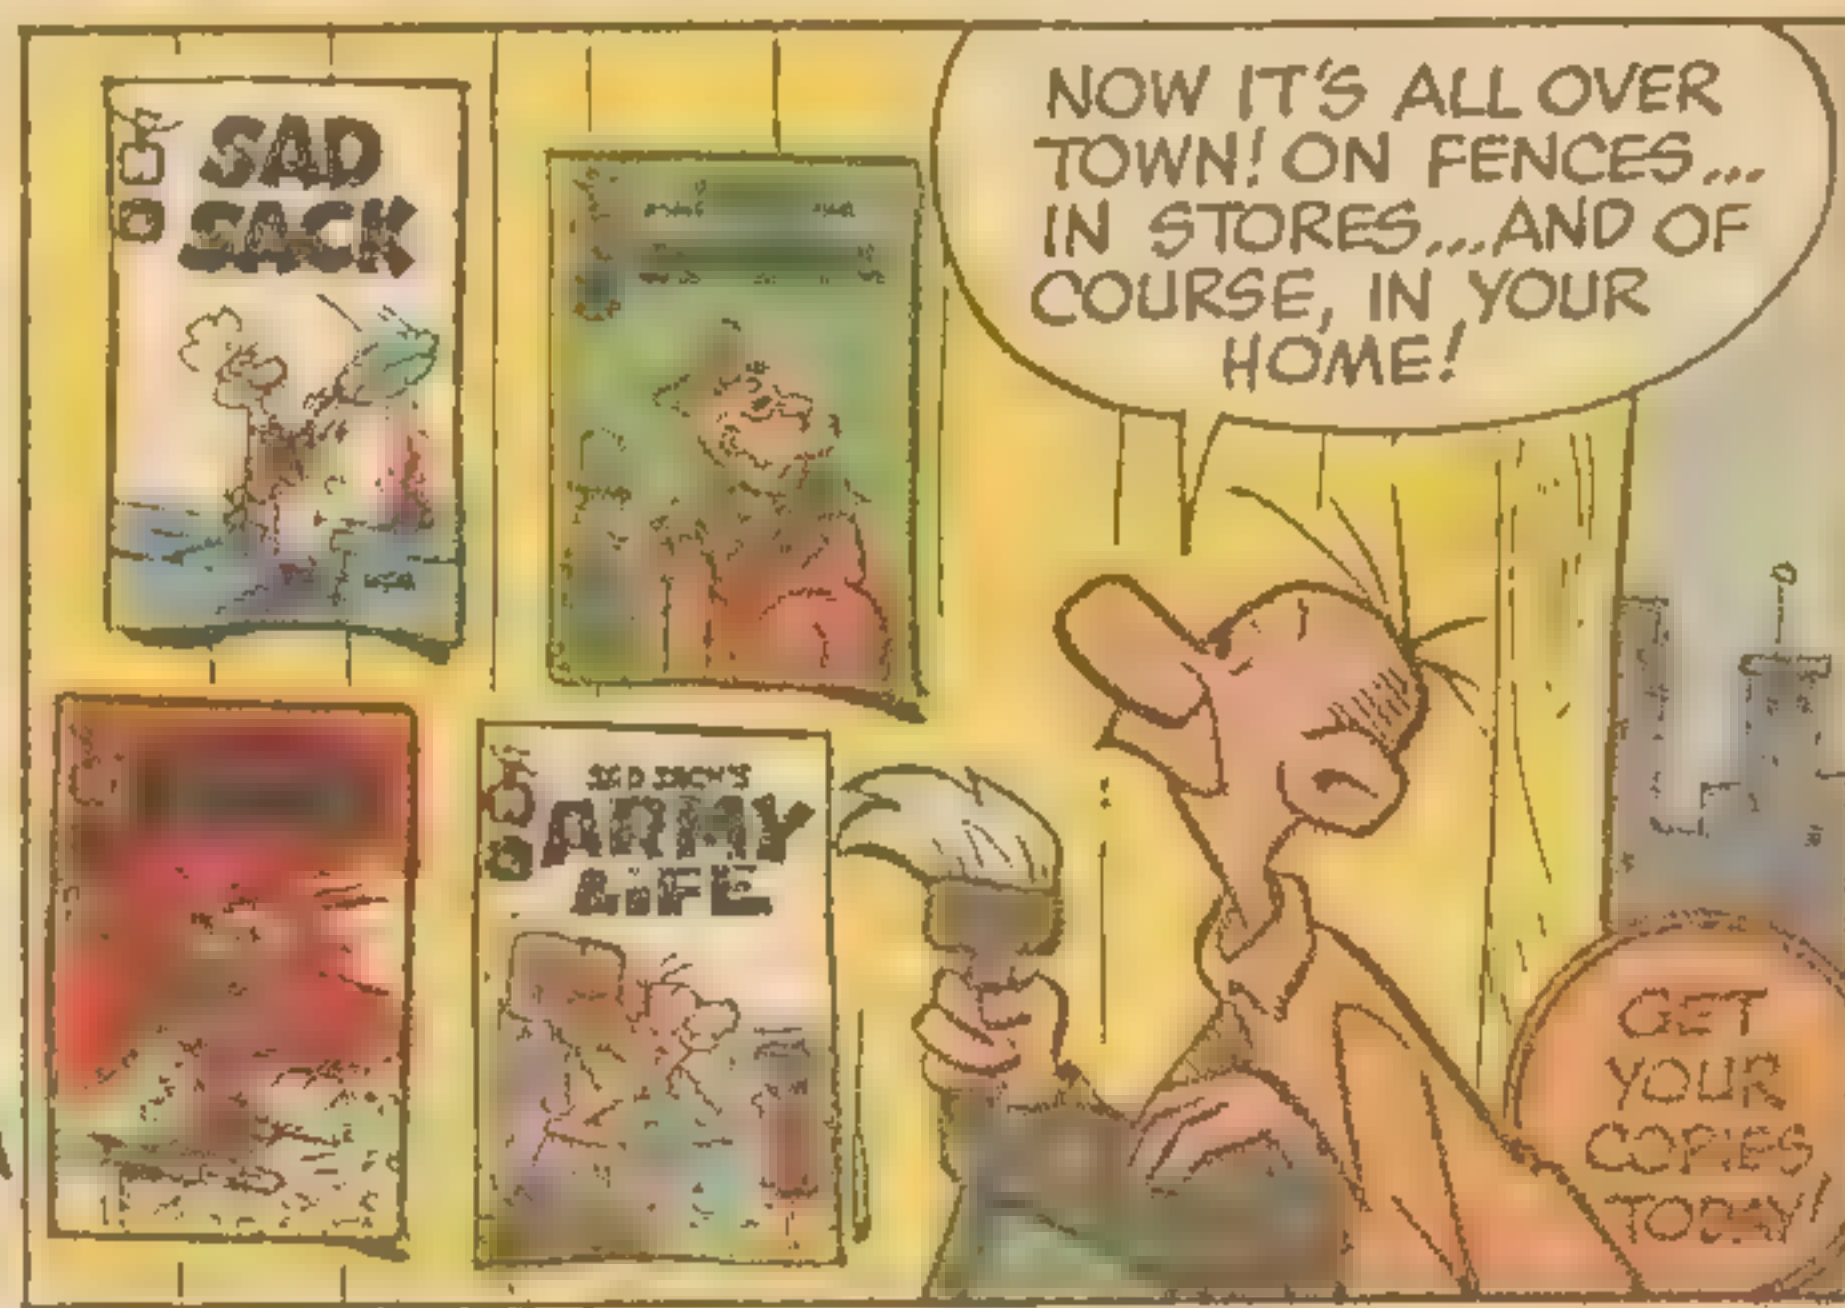

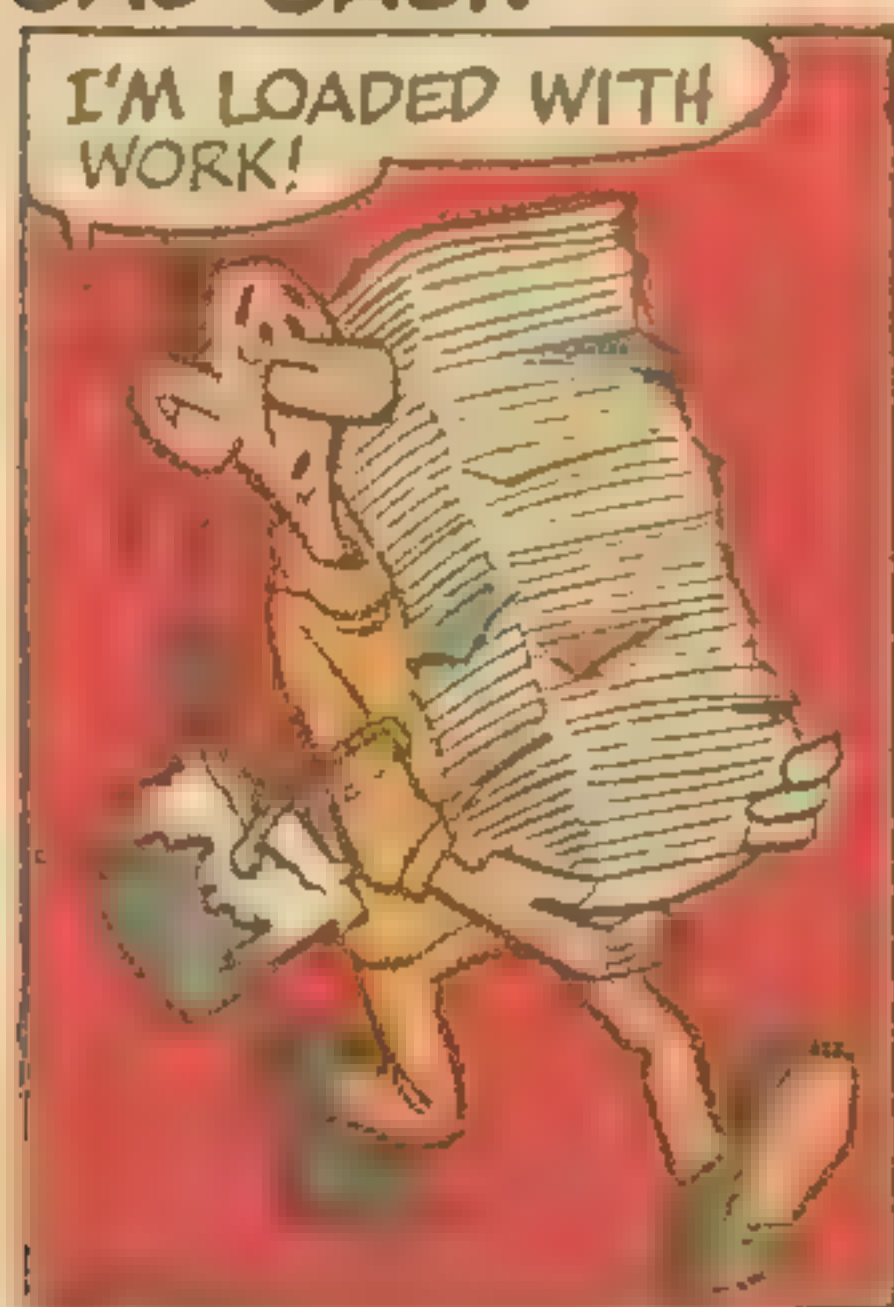

"Boy, this is a fun ride!" whooped Huey. "Can I steer it, Dimwit?"

"Steer?" said Dimwit; he looked dizzy. "You know, Cousin Huey, there's something I forgot on my invention—a steering thing!"

"Duh . . . you know where we're going?" Huey asked; then he answered, "We're going into Mrs. Vanderduck's house!"

Sure enough, Dimwit's invention was going up the stairs of the mansion.

"I'm sorry about that," Dimwit remarked, "because it kind of chewed up the lawn, and now it's chewing up the steps, and I hate to think what it's going to do inside the house!"

"You know what it's doing inside the house?" said Huey after the machine had gone through the door into the huge hall. "It's chewing up the rug and the furniture . . . and I think we'd better get out of here because Mrs. Vanderduck screams too loud!" Having said all this, Huey got off the machine and carried it outside and put it down on the driveway, which it also chewed up!

Dimwit's amazing invention chewed up the highway right into Duckville.

"That big old building will stop us!" declared Dimwit hopefully.

"I bet it won't!" exclaimed Huey as the thresher began chomping away at the bottom of the ancient office building.

Luckily, the building was empty; in fact, they were about to start tearing it down. They didn't have to. It collapsed, and everybody including Huey and Dimwit just had time to get out of the way.

". . . And you know what," said Dimwit later, when he and Huey had returned to the Duck home. "The man who was going to tear down that old Quackton Building said my machine saved him a couple of thousand dollars—so he gave me $100!"

Papa was excited. "Say, that machine could make us rich!"

"Oh, no it couldn't," Dimwit said. "The Quackton Building fell on it!"
